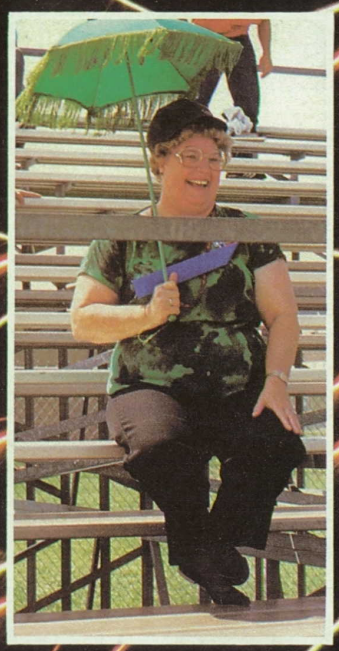
ON TOUR

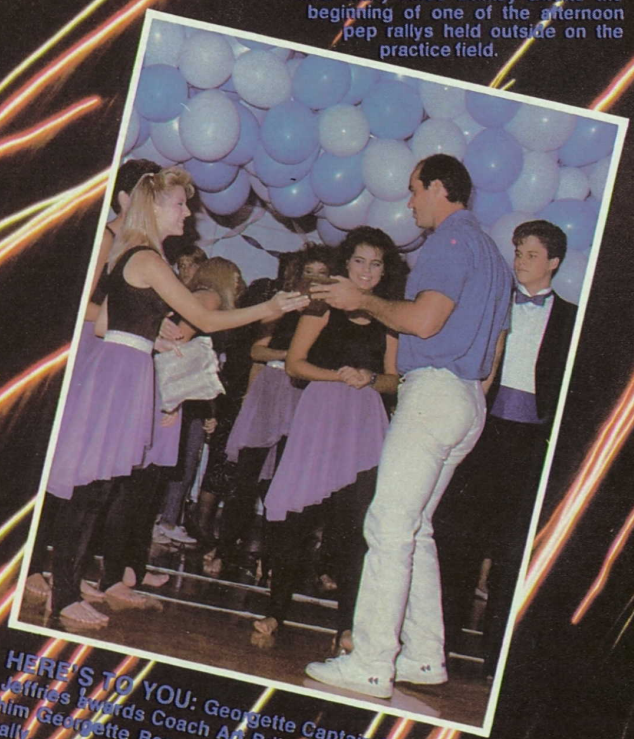
Travel With Us

Take a tour with us through the year, from the Opening Act to the Final Curtain. On this tour we'll see the academic, athletic, and social aspects of life at our school.

No tour would be complete without a look into the life of the people encountered along the way. Sometimes they're winners; sometimes not; but they're always an integral part of life at GHS.



EXPECTING RAIN: English teacher Mrs. Mary Alice Brinley awaits the beginning of one of the afternoon pep rallys held outside on the practice field.



HERE'S TO YOU: Georgette Captain Stephanie Jeffries awards Coach Art Briles a plaque naming him Georgette Beau during the Homecoming pep rally.

PLAYTIME: Senior Stacy Fuller plays at the park during lunch.

OOD MORNING: Juniors Laura Shields, Candace Thrash, zabeth Patterson, sophomore Kerrie Raum, juniors Kristin tis and Julie Lozano show spirit at a morning pep rally.

SO HOT: Varsity cheerleaders Hyla Huntley, Holly Grimes, Amy Hodge, Missy Connell, Jennifer Zeplin, Jeannie Copeland, Tim Bailey, Krystal Hanson, and Cindy Guelardo ride Georgetown Fire Department's Ladder 1 during the rodeo parade in June.

Student Life

While most students attended school to get an education to eventually become successful in life, this wasn't necessarily the favorite aspect of school life.

Many students thrived on the social atomsphere at school. Some counted the days to the weekend.

Others looked forward to vacations like Christmas, spring break and summer when academics took a backseat to rest and relaxation.

Clearly, school was not only for growing academically, but also for learning about life.

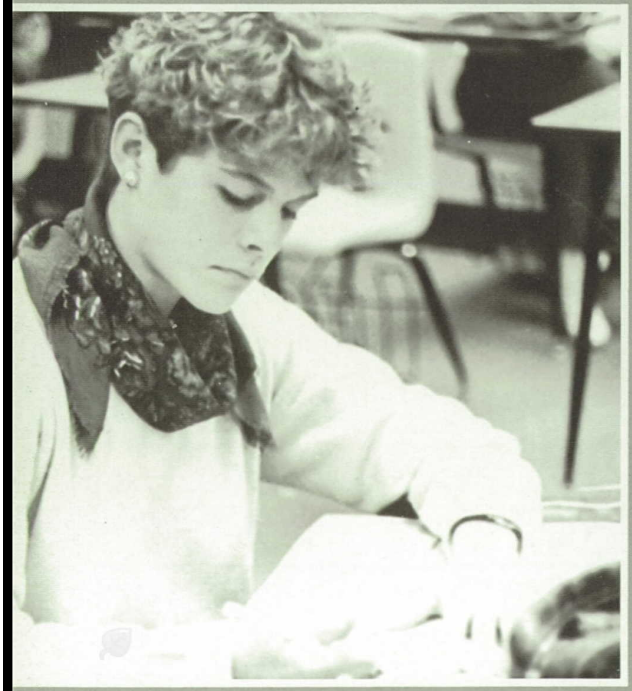
ALOHA: Sophomore Chrissie Schmoker shows her school spirit by getting "bummed out" for Beach Bum Day.



DEAR FRIEND: Senior Carolyn Blanchard wastes time in class by writing an "all important" note to one of her friends.

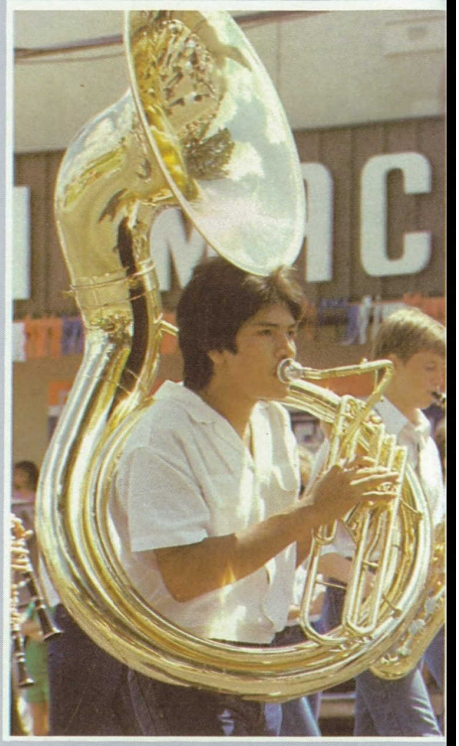
GIMMEA G: Varsity Cheerleaders Jennifer Zeplin, Cindy Guajardo Krystal Hanson, Holly Grimes, Angie Kieschnick, and Meredythe Cavender make a pom-pon "G" before the game.

Town '87

WE'RE HAVIN' A HEATWAVE

Students varied activities, but camp, parades,and goofing off brought summer sunshine to their lives.

KEEPIN' THE BEAT: Sophomore David Medrano, plays his tuba in the rodeo parade in June.



The beach, work, exotic vacation spots or in front of the TV; that's where the vast majority of GHS students spent their valuable summer time.

Others found a more profitable way to pass the time by extending their time in school for most of the summer. Approximately 180 students attended each of the two school sessions offered for the first time this year.

Georgettes, cheerleaders, journalism students and the yearbook staff remained loyal to the school by attending camps to sharpen their skills. The volleyball and football teams also began workouts and scrimmages.

"Mostly, I wanted to get away from Georgetown for awhile and just to have a good time," said junior Fred Mosel, who spent his vacation on South Padre Island over the July fourth weekend.

While many students headed for the coast, "Port A", and various other vacation spots around the globe, a large number of students spent long hours working odd jobs to save up enough money for the upcoming school year and other amenities of life such as gas and car payments.

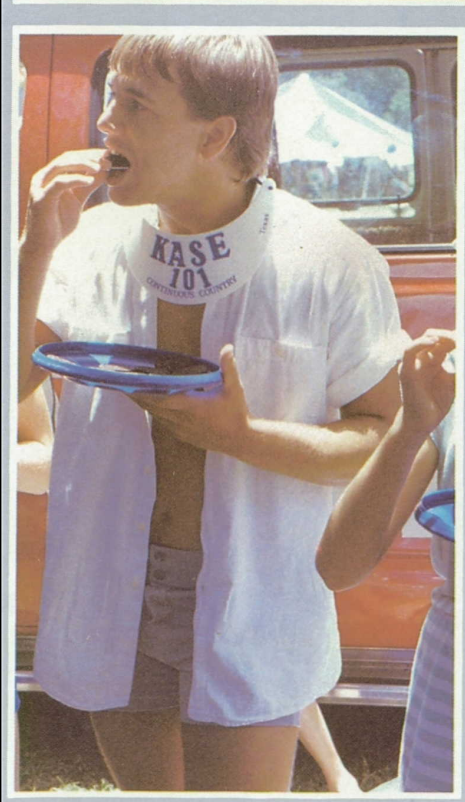
Senior Lisa Sharpe, who worked at the Texan House Publishing Company this summer, said, "It was a good opportunity for me to work in a business where I can gain experience for my career."

By far the most popular summer pastime, "bumming around," which consisted mainly of living day by day and thinking up fun and interesting activities to help alleviate the boredom, filled the days.

ROYAL WAVES: Mollie Sample,Miss Juneteenth Angie Jones, and Kimmie Mitchell wave to the crowd at the rodeo parade.

FARM AID: Crowds of people squeeze into Manor Downs to endure scorching temperatures for the biggest concert event of the summer.

MARCH ON: GHS Band performs at the rodeo parade which marched down Austin Avenue to open Western Week in June.



NEED MILK: Junior Chris Kounse indulges in Oreos at the San Gabriel Park festivities.

DOWN UNDER: Senior Nicole Tableriou scuba dives in Hawaii.

SUNNY SISTERS: Senior Zita Nemeth and sophomore Dora Nemeth enjoy the sun at San Gabriel Park.

SOON WET: Senior Georgette Pam Taylor waits to be dunked at the Fourth of July celebration in San Gabriel Park.

Let's Get ROWDY

Pep rallies spark school spirit

From mandatory afternoon pep rallies to optional early morning pep rallies . . . spirit builders underwent several changes this year. For the first three weeks of football season, students filed out of their seventh period classes and into the practice field stands to take part in the mandatory afternoon pep rallies. Due to the incompletion of the new gym facilites and lack of adequate space in the old gym, mandatory pep rallies could not be held inside.

"I didn't like the afternoon pep rallies. They were too hot and everyone was too crowded," said junior Anne Veerkamp.

Students only experienced three of these afternoon pep rallies. After the third, the administration announced that all classes must last at least 55 minutes every day. Taking five minutes off classes had violated this rule on pep rally days, and pep rallies moved to 8:20 a.m. before school. Due to this preschool time, students could not be forced to go.

"When pep rallies are optional you know that the people there really want to be there. It really creates more spirit that way," said junior Bianca Rodriguez.

Although Homecoming pep rallies traditionally took place in the afternoon, the 1986 Homecoming pep rally occurred before school.

Pep rally activities included dress-up days. Coaches, students and other faculty members participated in these spirit building events. Teachers, coaches and football players also participated in various skits to amuse the crowd.

RAISE YOUR HANDS IF YOU'RE SURE: Sophomore Dora Nemeth and seniors Zita Nemeth and Debbie Bracâmontez show confidence in the fighting Eagles.

TEACHER TOWER: Humanities teacher Louis Devanney, journalism teacher Donna Przygoda, biology teacher Bruce Katt, and history teacher John Thomas build a tower of knowledge at the Waste Waco Pep Rally.

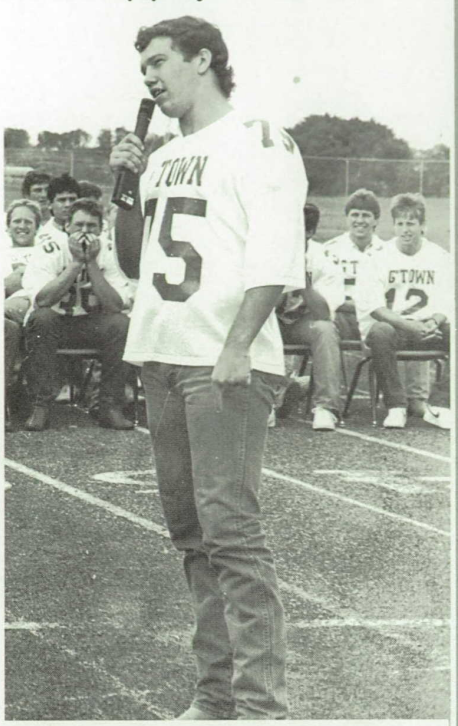
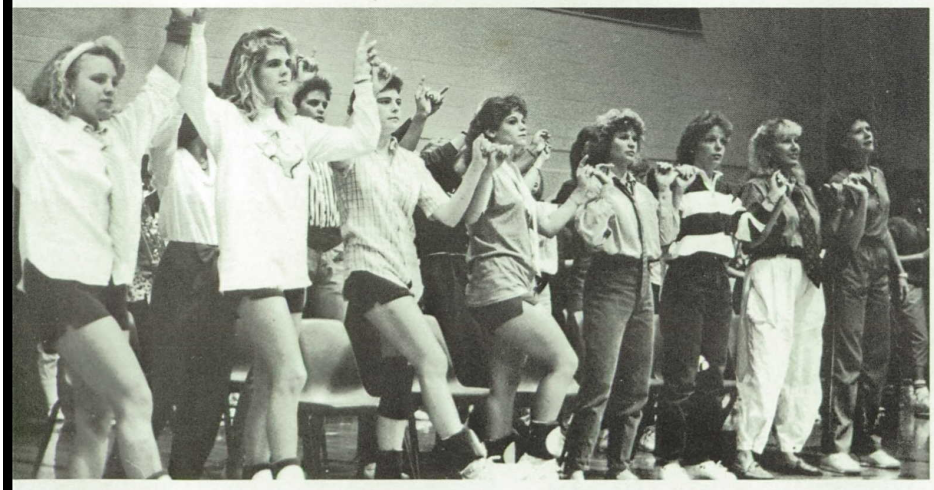
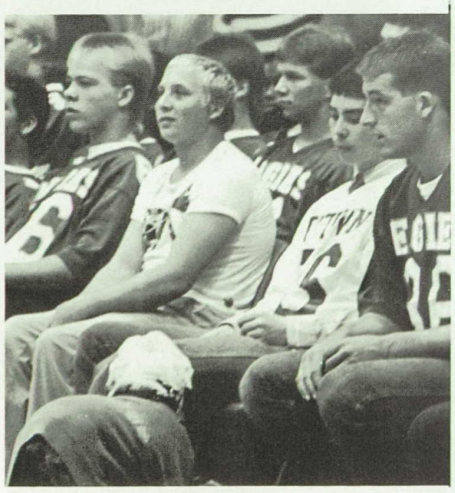
FLASH THE CHAPS: Drummers Chris Bennett, Randy Thomas and John McHugh let their spirit boom at the Beach Bum Pep Rally.

SIZZLE SIZZLE: Senior Bill Cardwell fires up the fans as the rest of the team looks on at an afternoon pep rally.







LICK IT UP: Winston the bulldog stares at senior Clay Shell's lollipop as junior Bill Nations and seniors Milton Johnson and Jeff Hulme look on.

SINKING SPIRIT: Seniors Missy Connell and Mike Hewlett, junior Holly Grimes and senior Scott Crawford perform at the Beach Bum Pep Rally.

Trendy Students Switch Swatches For Their Own . . .

Here today, gone tomorrow, fashions and fads changed frequently. Popular opinion turned from Ropers and Swatch watches in 1985 to silver jewelry, silver shoes, silver bags, Converse hightops and a few out of the ordinary hairstyles.

Although Ropers and Swatch watches remained trendy, students discovered ways to change them in order to add pizazz to a fading fad. Brightly colored Ropers such as turquoise, pink and yellow adorned the feet of many students as opposed to the traditional grey and brown. Students sported several Swatch watches at the same time instead of wearing just one.

"I enjoy my Swatch because it is fun to wear, its comfortable, and goes with almost everything," said senior Scott Supak.

Students, generally girls, bowed to silver's debut by adorning themselves with everything from rings with bows and hearts, clusters of grapes on their ears, to metallic silver shoes. Traditional silver jewelry such as necklaces and dangle rings remained popular as well. "Silver has a unique and innocent look," said Janet Heilman.

Girls' hairstyles remained bobbed and geometric. Styles for guys went through drastic changes from the year before. Very short, even flat top cuts appeared more frequently, and some J.V. football players took this short style a step further and had their football numbers shaved into the side of their hair.

Corona Beach Club shirts hit the halls causing quite a controversy. Apparently, some types of the shirts conflicted with the student dress code while some other types were acceptable.

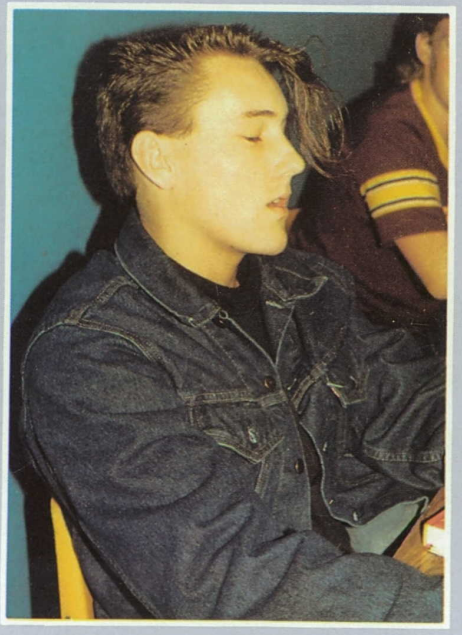
Converse high tops showed up almost everywhere. Guys and girls alike donned a pair of brightly colored high tops. Some students decorated their shoes with various dyes, words, and symbols.

"Anything anyone wanted to know about anyone could be reflected in their shoes," said sophomore Jeremy Zahasky.

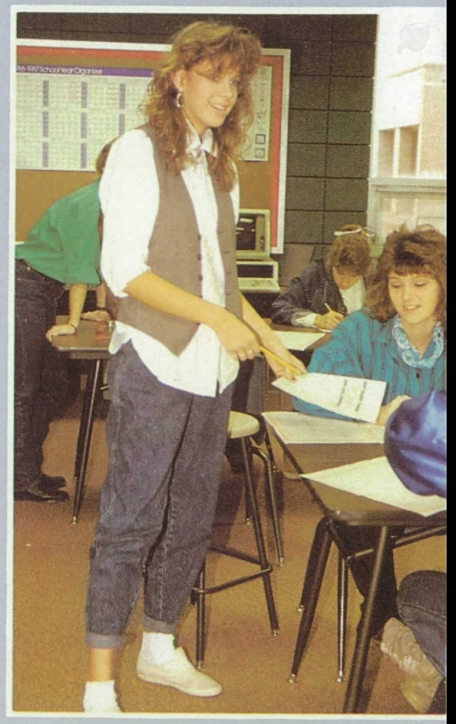
Girls turned up in detachable collars in great numbers as the year went by.

"Just about anything goes as far as fashion is concerned," said junior Jennifer Plentl.

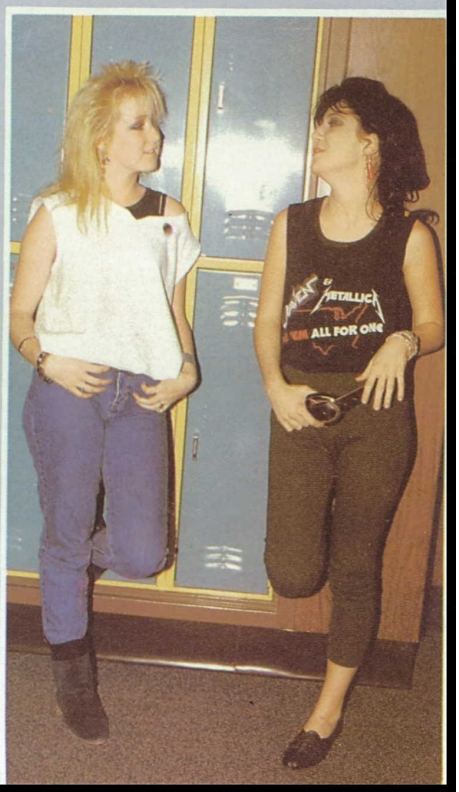
LOOKING SHARPE: Senior Lisa Sharpe listens to Mme. Jan Stanford during French class.



BANG YOUR HEAD: Senior Jeff Halloway talks to classmates in History class.



CLASS ACT: Sophomore Dawn Parizek discusses a photojournalism project with classmates.



OPPOSITES ATTRACT: Seniors Judy Young and Alissa Forcier talk about the previous night's concert before class.

GOLDEN CHILD: Sophomore Denise Mendez gets rid of gum before she goes to class.

PEEK A BOO: Senior Michelle Wright gathers information for her Talon column.

Short Lunches Equal FAST FOOD

New rules keep students close to campus

Ask any student about his favorite period of the school day and most of the time the answer would be: "Lunch."

"It serves as a break from the hectic school schedule and gives us time to relax a little and eat," said junior Tank Moore.

But when school opened in September, students and faculty alike found barely enough time to eat and no time to relax thanks to a new policy cutting the 55 minute period to 37 minutes.

Students and faculty who left campus for lunch usually visited local fast food establishments and then rushed back to beat the bell. Those students who did stay behind and braved the cafeteria lines often found the school food unsatisfying.

"The food is alright sometimes . . . if you enjoy eating cardboard," said junior Tim Locke.

Some students complained that rushing the lunches increased the probability of accidents.

Senior Sharon Vasquez said, "As a senior I really miss the hour for lunch. I enjoyed just relaxing. It's so rushed now."

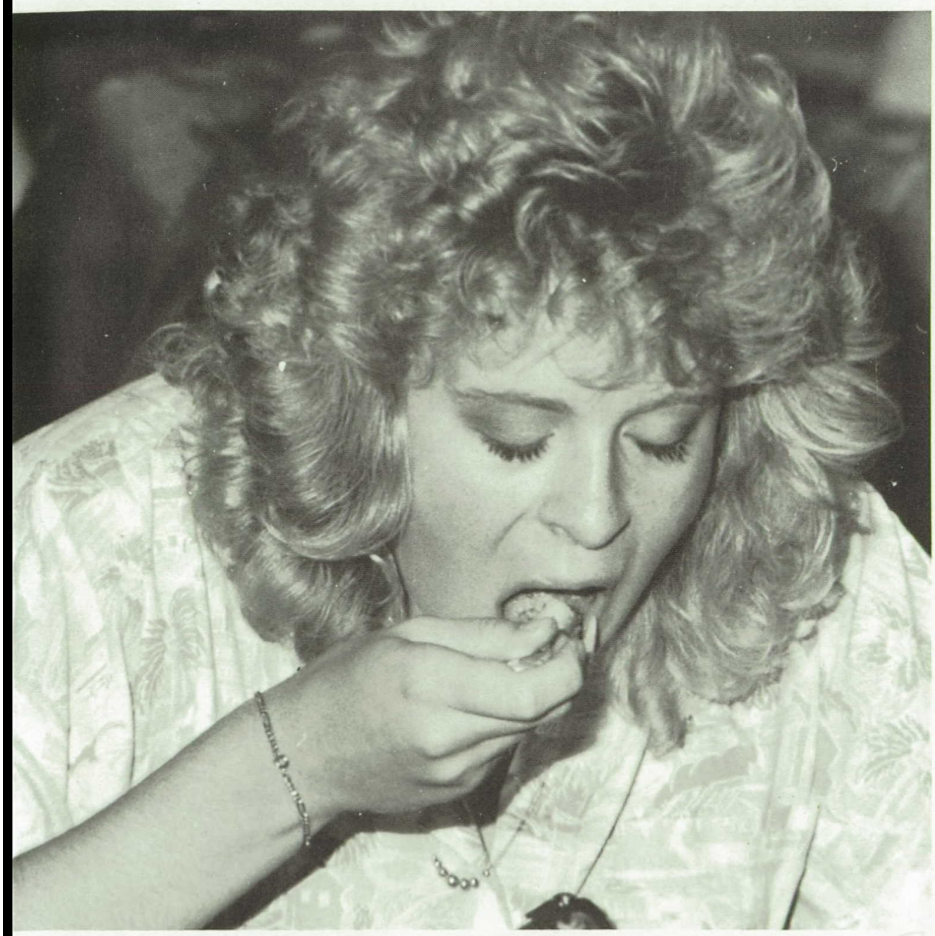
NOW GIRLS: Vice-principal Jerre Varne tells juniors Ann Atkins, Shonna Padget Christie Bell, and senior Audra Thelen to hurr and eat.

EATIN' ON THE RUN: Sophomore Rand Ray quickly devours a hamburger and a Coke a Hardees during lunch.

COKE IS IT: Senior Alissa Forcier buys a Coke during her lunch period.

LIQUID LUNCH: Junior Kristin Curtis, freshmen Valerie Praesel, Jennifer Wuest and J.J. Rutledge enjoy a quick Coke at Hardees.

CHOW TIME: Sophomores Scott Morris and Laura Blundell share lunch in the cafeteria.



STRONG STOMACH: Junior Sara Albers eats a frito pie in the cafeteria.

UNDER PROTEST

The deserted cafeteria waited with anticipation. The staff stood poised awaiting the onslaught of eager students who would soon engulf the Commons area. The bell sounded and the cafeteria quickly filled up with hundreds of loud students, but this day, Sept. 18, many more students than usual had filtered in. Did they come for the flavorful burgers or ambiance? Or did they come to show support of a student-initiated protest against the shortened lunch period?

The idea of the protest came about as a result of concerned students who argued the that allotted time was not long enough to leave campus to eat lunch in a reasonable amount of time. They also raised the point that rushing the lunch was dangerous, in that it increased the probability of accidents.

"It's really dangerous. People are rushing back and forth so they won't be tardy. Someone's going to get hurt," said senior Brent Rogers.

The concept was to have as much of the student body as possible converge on the cafeteria hoping this would show the administrators that they couldn't handle the load and thus lengthen the lunch period.

The protest was conceived and organized by junior Thad Singleton and senior Brent Rodgers. They and some other students formed a group calling themselves the SSR (Student's for Student Rights).

"Students are being treated unfairly in this school and with the SSR we're trying to raise the awareness about certain injustices to all students," said junior Thad Singleton.

The administration did lengthen the lunch by a few minutes but not because of the protest. Principals explained that because the school was violating the state's time-in-class policy on pep rally days, minor adjustments to the schedule were made.

Coming Home To HOLOCAUST

Eagles post disappointing 70-7 loss to top non-traditional day

Things changed, people came and went, but Homecoming remained an unmovable tradition. Although Homecoming changed in some ways, most traditional events still took place. This Homecoming introduced the early morning pep rally, unlike those Homecomings in past years where pep rallies took place in the afternoon. Due to the 8:20 a.m. starting time, few graduates made it to the school to support the Eagles.

"I thought the decorations this year were really cool, but I wish more of the graduates could've been there. I think it would've created a lot more school spirit," said varsity cheerleader Hyla Hundley.

The student council sold mums once again. Mums cost anywhere from $20 to $30 dollars depending on which ornaments students chose to garnish their flowers. Some girls had cowbells, lucky charms, roses, footballs, pipe-cleaner letters, and lights on their mums.

The Eagles suffered a substantial loss at the game against Westwood. Senior Scott Crawford did score one touchdown but the Eagles still lost 70-7.

The Eagle band marched during the pre-game show in order to allow time to crown the Homecoming queen at halftime. "I thought marching before the game was a good idea," said band member Suzanne Hindelang, "this way halftime didn't run so long."

Former Homecoming Queen Vanessa Frommholz crowned Amy Hodge the 1986 Queen. Senior Shawn Donahey escorted Amy and they represented the National Honor Society.

The student council sponsored the only dance in town. The dance admitted currently enrolled students only and drew quite a crowd. To get into this function students had to part with two dollars per person or three dollars per couple. The mobile D.J. ICE provided the music for the dance. Many football players showed up for the dance despite their disappointing loss.

Weekly Costume PARTY

Dress up days break routine

When Junior Mike McMaster came to school elaborately made up with blue and white make-up, most people knew another dress-up day was upon them.

When teachers came to class in poodle skirts and bouffant hairstyles, students laughed and knew it must be back in time day.

Dress-up days originated as a way to build school spirit and to alleviate the boredom of everyday school life."

The dress-up days for the year consisted of beach bum, kami-kaze, back in time and western days.

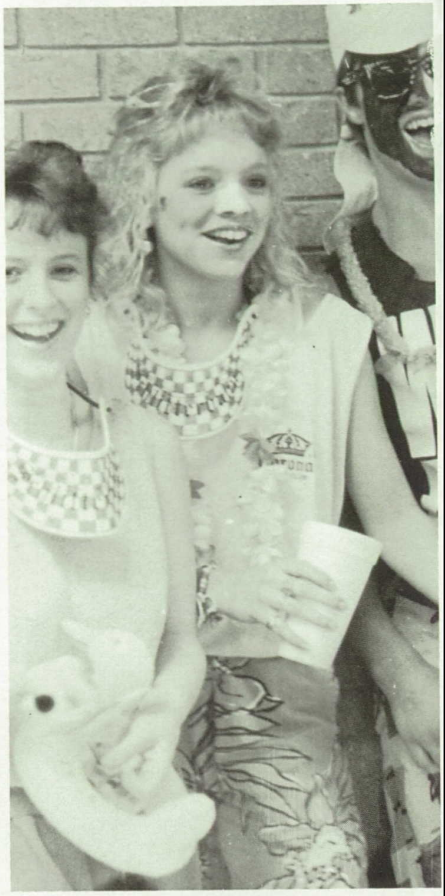
In addition, students wore band-aids while the band competed in state competiton.

Dress-up days coincided with pep rallies and remained constant with the theme.

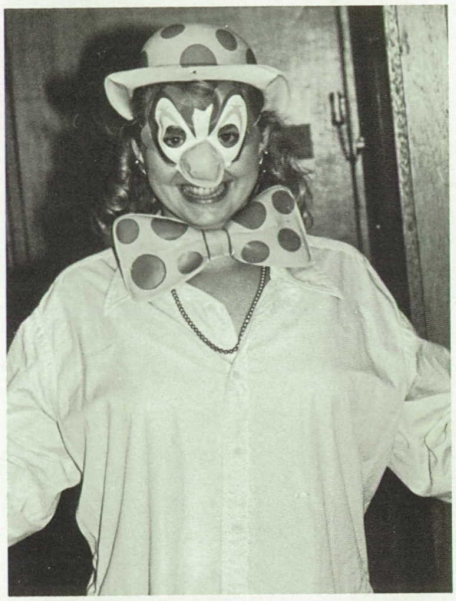
Dressing-up appealed to cheerleaders, Georgettes and some spirited students and teachers.

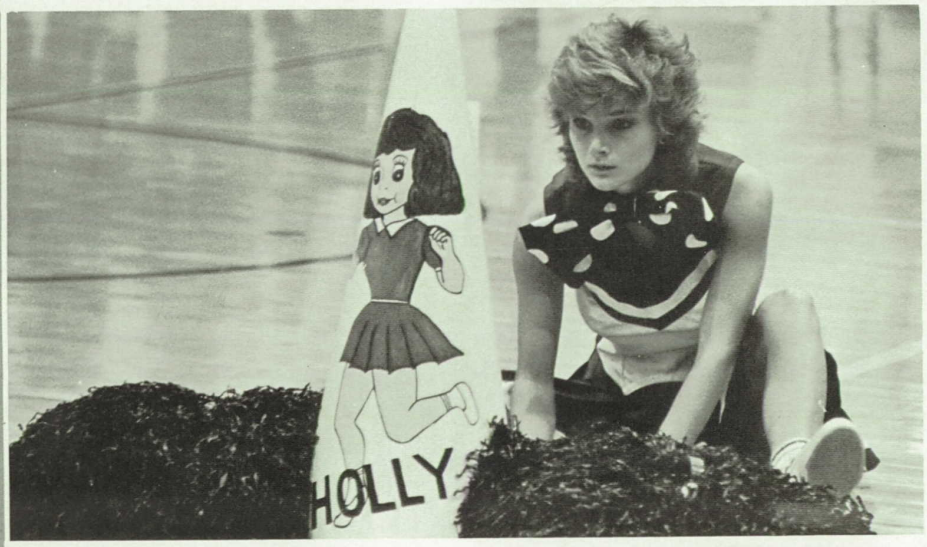
Senior Carolyn Blanchard said, "I dress up because all my friends do, it's a change from the norm."

BUMMED OUT: Juniors Kim Slaughter, Erica Garcia, and Greg Rees lean against "the wall" in their beach bum attire.



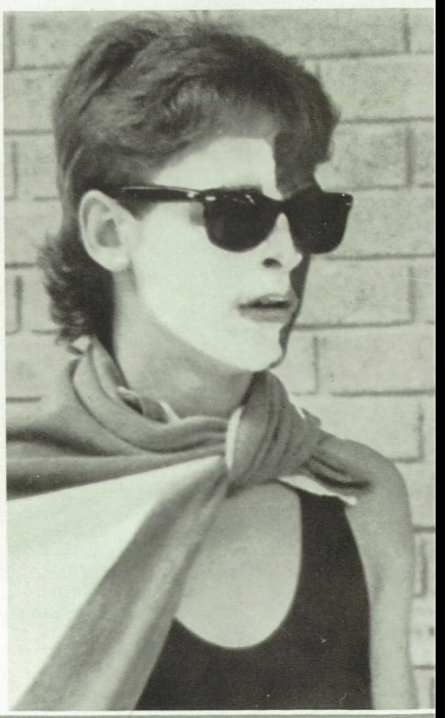
CLOWNING AROUND: Senior Julia Allen prepares for the pep rally on Halloween.

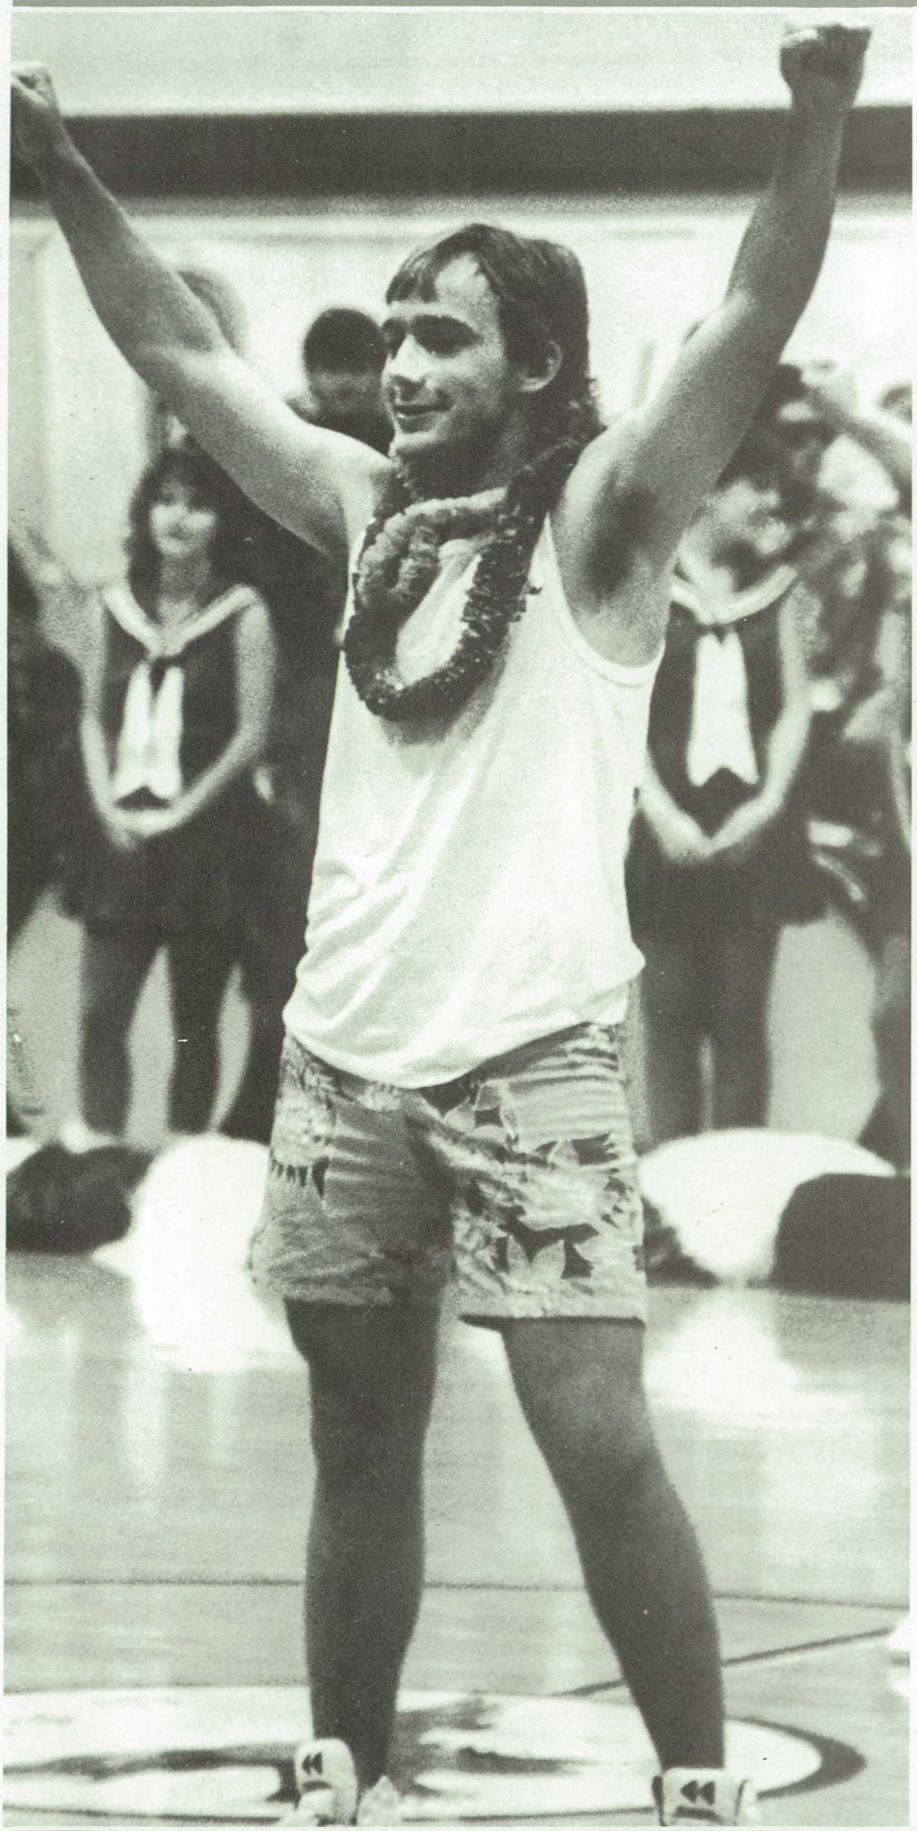




TIED UP: Senior varsity cheerleader Missy Connell reads the schedule for the tie day pep rally.

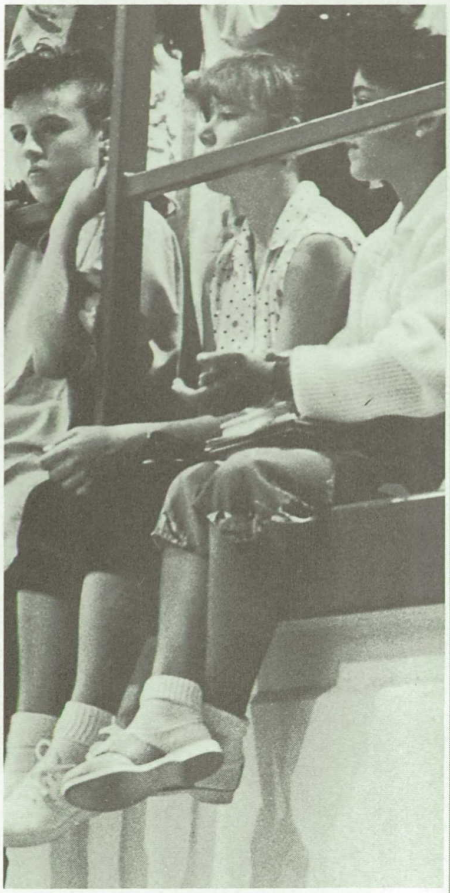
CAPTAIN SPIRIT: Junior Mike McMaster shows his true colors in the Commons.





SURF'S UP: Senior Scott Pope participates in the beach bum pep rally.

LITTLE BABES: Freshmen Brooke Marsh, Lisa Ladd, and Julie Crawford watch the back-in-time pep rally in costume.



WAR ZONE: Junior Sunny Haines demonstrates her support by the kami-kaze clothing she wears to an outdoor pep rally.

Let's Jam

Rock and roll survives

The hours of practice, the expensive borrowed equipment and neighbors complaining about the noise, all played a part of the local band scene.

Although the number of bands may not have been as extensive as Austin's, Georgetown did have its own variety of local rock and country bands. Many of the aspiring musicians were high school students who spent a great deal of their free time traveling around from garage to garage,(or wherever they could set up) with carloads of expensive equipment and instruments practicing to hone their skills to razor sharp perfection. Bands usually spent most of their time practicing because of a limited music scene which didn't provide them a public place to play. Instead, they ended up playing local parties and, eventually, the Talent Show. (see related story)

"Concerts have really been a drag lately . . . after Metallica, it's just been downhill since then."

Many students appreciated having local bands. Sophomore Chris Yamka said, "I think it adds variety and texture to an otherwise boring and senseless school environment."

Many high school students expressed their enjoyment of music by attending live concerts. Students could attend concerts of virtually any performer on tour, for a price.

"Van Halen put on the best concert I've seen. They put out a lot of energy and had a lot of fun with the audience." said junior Mike Penniman. "Plus I was on the first row."

Other students felt less motivated about the concert going "ritual." Freshman Cutter Seggern said, "Concerts have really been a drag lately . . . after Metallica, it's just been downhill since then."

POUND THOSE SKINS: Senior Rick Cassizzi, drummer for Third Coast, beats his way to victory in the annual Talent Show.

Showoffs

The time came once again for the aspiring musicians, singers and dancers of Georgetown to step into the spotlight to show off their talents. The scene was the annual choir-sponsored Talent Show. A wide variety of talents ranging from the usual bands and singers to a stand-up comedian and dancers participated in the show.

"The event went well. There was definitely a lot of talent there, and I think the acts were better than they were last year," said sophomore choir member Amy Johnson.

The show was basically divided into three divisions: singers, comedy and bands; with cash prizes going to the first place winner in each category.

Freshman Becky Russell took top honors in the tough singing category with her beautiful redition of The Rose. In the stand-up comedy or skit division, senior Sean Fullerton entertained the audience and took first place for his routine. Finally in the much heralded and competitive band division, Third Coast, consisting of senior Rick Cassizzi, and juniors Greg Stuewe and Tim "the axeman" Locke, swept the category.

STRUMMIN' ALONG: Sophomore Roman Milner plays a chord as he performs with his band, Halliphax.

TRENDSETTER: Senior Alyssa Forcier shows her originality by her hairstyles and choice of clothing.

Shirt Tales

"Like lately, y'know, the popularity of concert shirts has really been tripindicular, y'know dude? It's like they've been around awhile, but now they're kinda like some gnarly fashion statement or something. Like the kids would get'em while they were at the show and wear'em to kinda like show that they were actually there, y'know? But y'know what's really a bum deal? It's like the kids who'd wear concert shirts were kinda like associated with like being really rebellious and bad and stuff like that, which is like totally bogus, dude.

"Like, I know this guy, Fred Mosel, who's a junior and he said, 'I think concert shirts are a way of expressing one's self. Some people wore them to show they attended the concert, while some wore them as a representation of their favorite groups. In any case, it's sad to see that some people seem to view concert shirts negatively, and that anyone who wears one is automatically associated with drug use.'"

BUT SERIOUSLY FOLKS: Senior Sean Fullerton performs his hysterical comedy routine at the annual choir-sponsored talent show.

WINNERS: Third Coast band members-Juniors Greg Stuewe and Tim Locke, sing Lara's Song at the Talent Show, which was a tribute to the late Lara Lefforge.

Time Out For

INTERMISSION

Whether they just cruised Sonic, 7-11, and Gatti's, or went to Austin, a party or a movie, most students tried to keep busy while having fun.

Although Georgetown did not have the most extensive night life, students usually found some kind of activity to entertain themselves.

Gone are the days when one wore white gloves and dresses to parties. These days, the accepted outfit included jeans and tennis shoes, and parties, because of their laid back atmosphere, became the most popular thing to do on weekends.

Senior Steve Gortat went to parties because, "school really bums me out and I try to have a good time."

Parties gave people a place to make new friends and many times young men and women met and became couples.

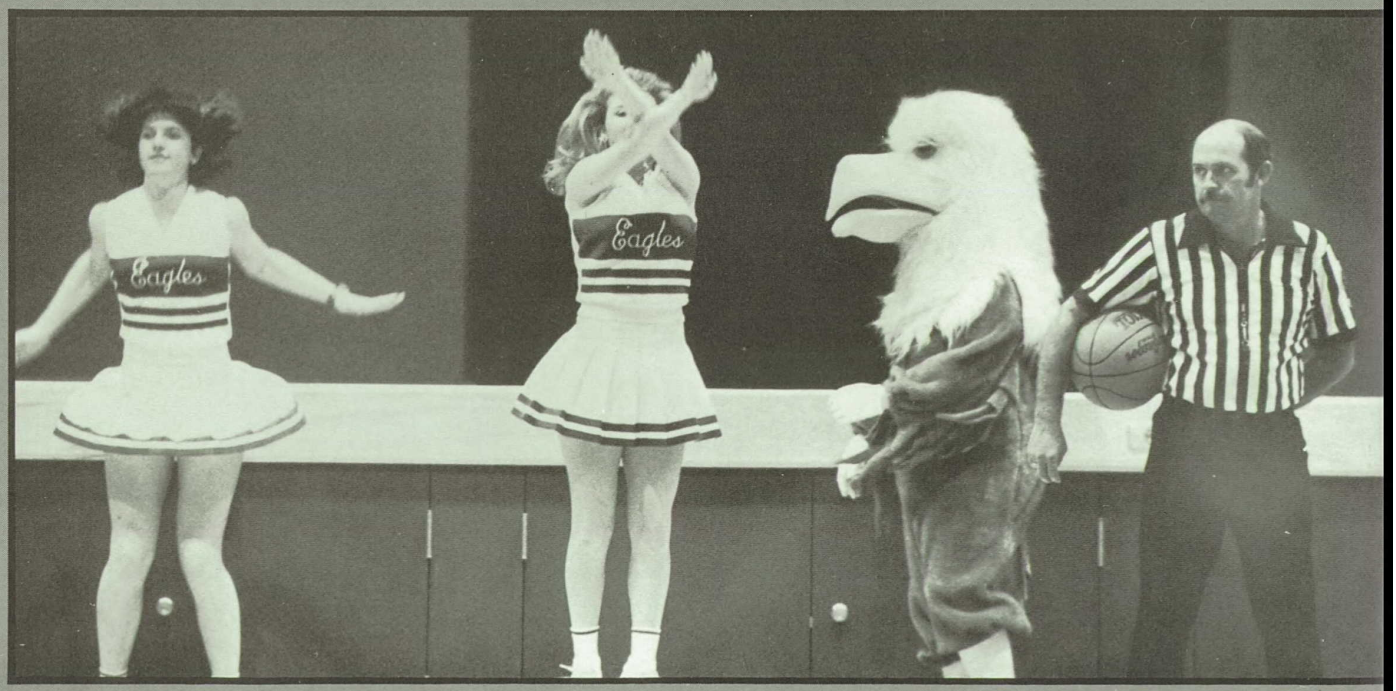
Not everybody spent time at parties on weekends. Some studied, some worked, and some attended athletic and literary events sponsored by the school.

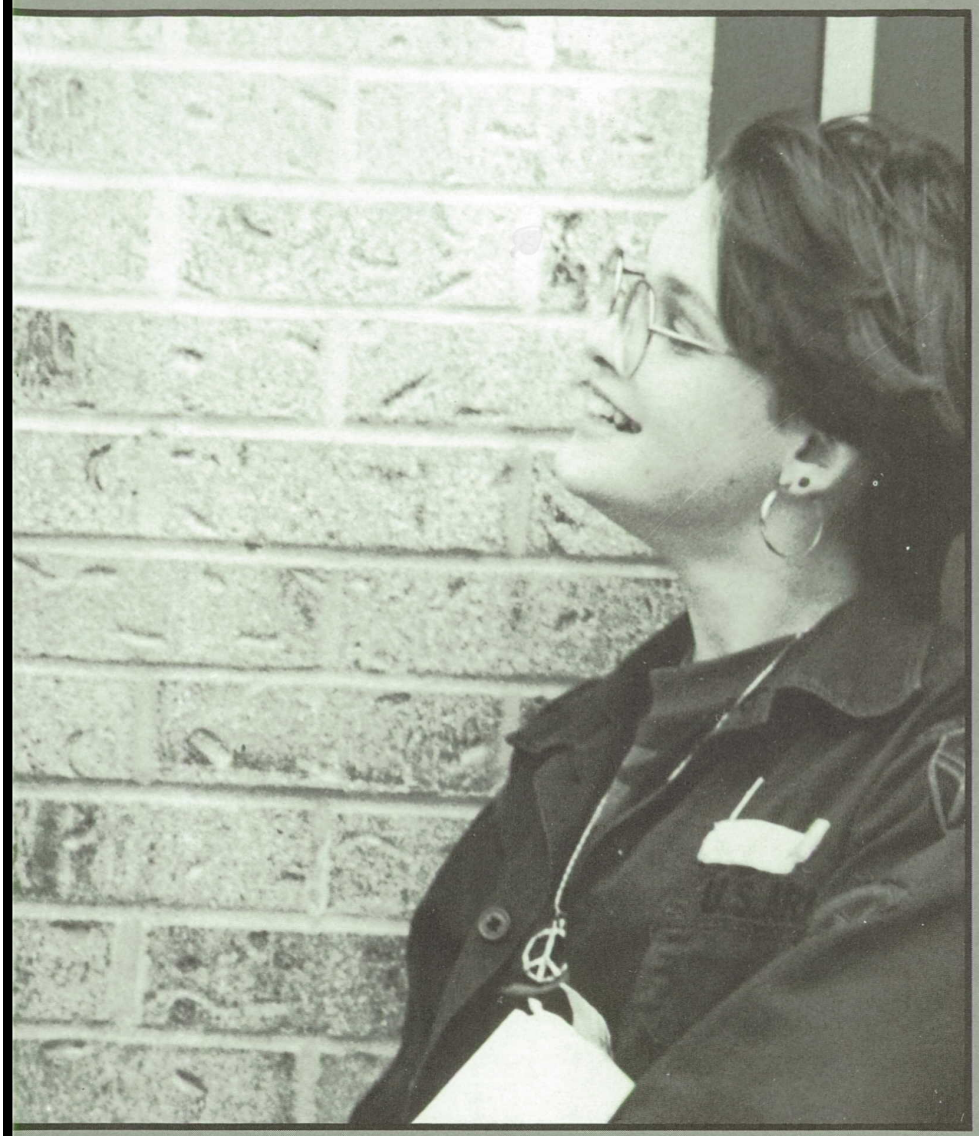
"I hate working on Friday and Saturday nights," said junior Wendy Price, who worked at Pit Barbeque. "After work I usually go out smelling like barbeque and I get tired of people telling me I smell good enough to eat."

"I collapse, read, grade papers and attend workshops," said Spanish teacher Mr. Earl Martin.

"I work on speech stuff," said junior Chuck Williamson.

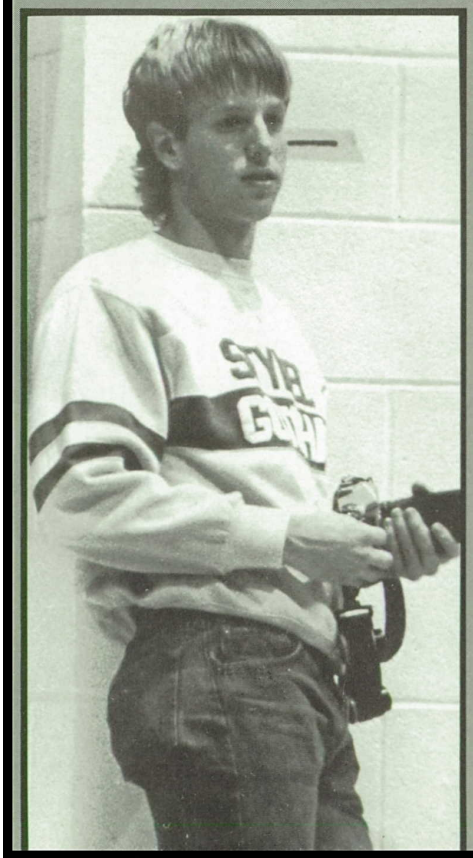
TIME IN TIME OUT: Varsity cheerleaders Hyla Hundley and Amy Hodge, and Eagle Mascot Jeannie Copeland show their spirit at a Friday night basketball game.





PARTY PLANNERS: Freshman Kim Wright and senior Michelle Wright make plans for a weekend get-together.

FAMILIAR SIGHT: Many students spent their weekends traipsing Austin's famous Sixth Street in search of excitement.



SURESHOT: Senior Todd Treible stands ready to capture the action with his camera at a basketball game.

LET'S MAKE UP: Tracksters Lori White, Stacy Davis, and Ann Atkins prepare to go out after a day spent at a track meet.

Going Once Going Twice SOLD

Livestock shows provide farm aid

"Okay here we are. You're going to be sold. So,smile a little, wiggle your end a little, make sure you stay in line. Show your stuff,Honey. We've worked together for a long time now and this is the end!"

Five months of feeding, caring and cleaning his lamb paid off for senior Chris Knight, who received Reserve Grand Champion at the Williamson County Livestock Association Show in December. Chris said, "That makes it all worthwhile."

Junior Ericka Edminston spent five months running , fattening , and caring for her lambs. One of her lambs received first place at the Williamson County Livestock Show, but she said the big surprise was her lamb "Baby Yates." He received Grand Champion, marking the second straight year for Ericka to win this honor. "I am so surprised, I never dreamed that I would get it two years in a row!" said Ericka.

Students did not just take an animal out of the pasture and into the show ring. Hours of exercising the animal, combing every hair in place, and feeding it a diet of healthy foods took months of preparation.

Students purchased sheep in June and July, hogs in August and September, and then spent between one and two hours after school everyday until showtime with their animals.

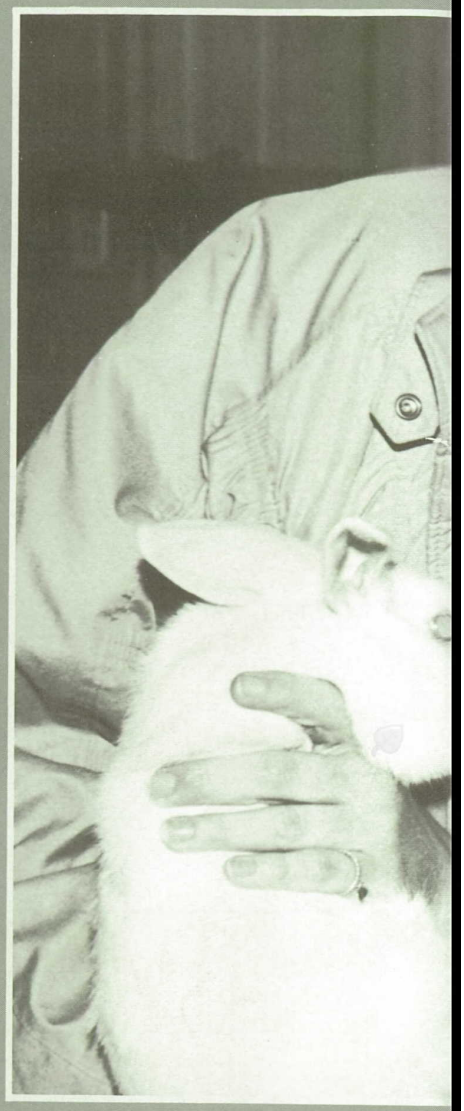
Students showed large livestock in five major categories including steers, cattles, hogs, lambs, and sheep. The smaller livestock included rabbits, poultry, turkeys, and diary goats, a new addition.

Many students placed high enough to sell their animals at the auction to the highest bidder.

"When you have to sell your animal it is very hard, and it feels like you are losing someone in your family," said sophomore Rissa Rodgers.

Even though some students didn't do as well as they had expected, everyone seemed to agree all the hard work was well worth it.

What does it take to have a prize winning animal? "T.L.C. (tender-loving-care). A desire to work and follow instructions-good selection and lots of luck," said Mr. Billy Hord, FFA sponsor.



FLUFF UP: Junior Kim Witherspoon gets her lamb ready to show before the judges.

SLEEP TIGHT: Freshman Paul Orme checks on his lamb before leaving for the night.

FURRY FRIEND: Junior Charlotte Fox prepares her rabbit for the judges.

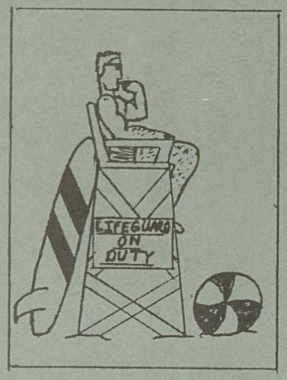
Spring Break '87

Spring break came just in time for most students, even though the March date was at least a month earlier than most other schools.

"Spring break was early this year, but that didn't keep me from having fun," said senior Mark Cheney.

Many students went out of town to visit relatives, friends, or to travel to new and exciting places.



"My spring break was the best! My family went to Cancun, Mexico, which is on the Yucatan. The weather was excellent; the beaches couldn't have been better, the clubs hotter, nor the guys more gorgeous!" said sophomore Chrissie Schomoker.

"It was fun besides the fact I had to get up early every morning to go to soccer practice," said freshman Shannon Miller.

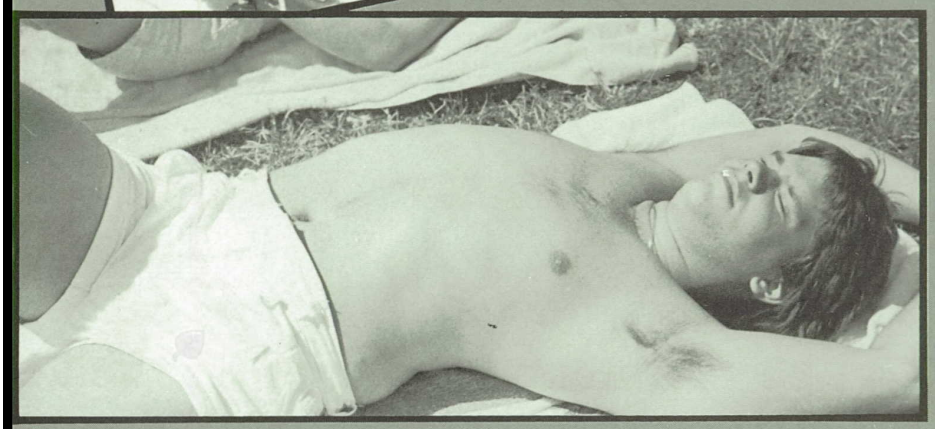
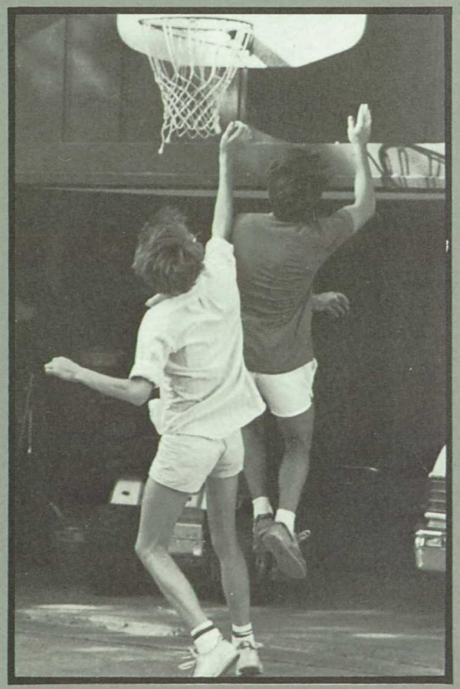
PLAY BALL: Freshmen Jessica Green and Staci Chambers play soccer during an early morning practice.





TWO FOR ME: Senior Karl Siebert and Kevin Denney play basketball at home one afternoon.

Let's Get DRAMATIC

Screams emitted from the Little Theatre. The screeching sounds of chain saws slicing through bone sent shivers down listener's spines. The stench of burning flesh filled the night air. It was Halloween, and drama students took advantage of the night to show their talents, and to raise money for the drama club.

Mrs. Diane Ebert, drama club sponsor, and her students worked for weeks to get the haunted house off the ground. "All the girls were scared and the guys kept punching each other," said drama president Cynthia Conomos.

The Christmas Carol, a classic Christmas tale, performed December 18,19, and 20 in the Little Theatre, starred Senior Ralph Mathews as Scrooge, and Cassandra Syler as Tiny Tim.

Kelly McInerney received All-star cast honors at the UIL One Act play competition, and Steven Clark and Doug McLean received honorable mention. The club preformed The Case of the Crushed Petunias for their UIL competition.

The haunted house and other fund raisers like a dinner theatre helped club members to produce The Christmas Carol in December and the UIL One Act play in the spring.

The club went to see Camelot and had the honor of meeting Richard Harris. Members also saw plays performed by the Southwestern University Mask and Wig Players.

Sign of the Times

What will you remember about this year? What memories will remain twenty years from now? Why has this year been different from any other year?

On the local scene, this was the year GHS students protested a shortened lunch period, narrowly escaped a serious butane fire and shared their town with Hollywood personalities here to film the movie "Johnny Be Good" and the TV pilot "Doodles".

Students joined together to mourn the deaths of two students, seniors Lara Lefforge and Genaro Gonzales in unrelated traffic accidents.

Ex-governor Bill Clements returned to office in November by defeating Mark White. After 14 years of driving 55 mph motorists in May got the nod to legally drive 65 mph, but not while drinking. Texas teachers struggled through one more humiliation by the Texas Legislature who ordered four appraisals throughout the year with the Texas Teacher Appraisal System(TTAS).

President Ronald Reagan (alias Ron Headrest) and a group of his advisors found themselves under investigation for illegally selling arms to aid the Contras in Nicaragua contrary to congressional approval.

We celebrated the 100th birthday of the Statue of Liberty on July 4 and watched the meteoric rise of TV letter monger Vanna White.

AIDS (Aquired Immune Deficiency System). escalated at an alarming rate and took the lives of Hollywood superstars Rock Hudson and Liberace while scientists all over the world worked to find a cure.

Sex scandals rocked the Democratic party and the PTL organization. Gary Hart withdrew from the presidential race after being accused of spending the weekend with a young woman, and Jim Bakker,was fired as president of PTL after he admitted to a liason with a young woman.

"A person just doesn't know what channel to turn to for inspiration anymore," said senior Steve Clark.

Rules are made to be BROKEN

An innocent kiss in the hall could get a person two days of D-hall. An unshaven face could result in one lick. These rules, plus many others found in the student handbook resulted in controversy among students and faculty. "Some of these rules like not holding hands in the hall are pretty stupid," said junior Jennifer Zeplin.

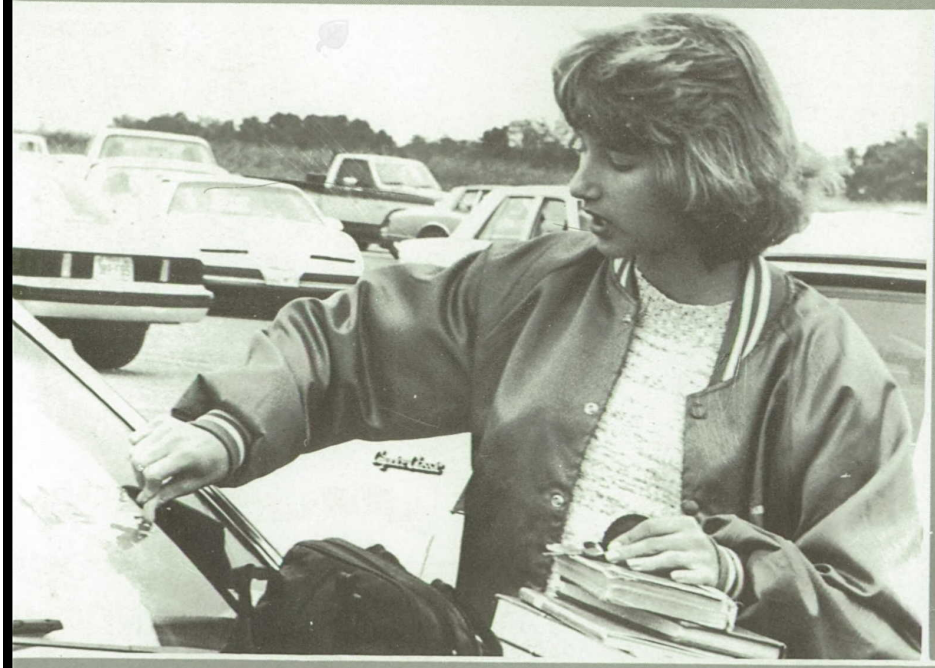
That opinion was shared by sophomore Jobe Carter. "I've never even read the student handbook," he said.

"I've seen people in the halls slobbering all over each other and it made me uncomfortable," said Mrs. Donna Pryzgoda, Photojournalism teacher. "I believe there is a time and a place for everything. The holding hands doesn't really bother me though. "A little stubble on the face is in style and it doesn't bother me."

Junior Marcy Potter didn't agree. She said, "Stubble is scratchy and looks dumb on some people."

"Some rules are reasonable, some are not," said sophomore Veronique Laurent. "The school officials must consider us to be young and immature. I can understand the smoking and weapon bit, but no shorts, candy or holding your boyfriend's hand is really getting to be boring and monotonous."

Some students agreed with the school rules. They said without them the school wouldn't be the same.



NOT AGAIN: Senior Debbie Hauser tries to scrape the warning sticker from her car windshield after school. Stickers were given to illegally parked or unstickered cars.

Atlantis Under Construction

Underwater Enchantment takes work

First you find a date, make reservations, rent a tuxedo or buy a dress, order your corsage or boutonniere, buy invitations (unless you're a senior) and wash the car. Then you convince Mom and Dad to let you stay out all night.

But to create the underwater spectacle, "A Night in Atlantis," out of an airplane hanger took an incredible amount of imagination and elbow grease. A professional decorator, 25 juniors, lots of adults and $6,000 transformed the Stanton Hanger at Georgetown Airport.

To accomplish this feat, 3,000 emerald green, navy blue and transparent balloons had to be inflated and the mechanics of setting up a waterfall and a bubble machine had to be worked out.

"It was a lot of hard work, but it was fun organizing it and well worth the effort," said junior vice president Anne Hebert. The effort paid off.

"The best thing about prom was the decorations, they were radical," said junior Jennifer Zeplin.

"Finding a place to have the prom was difficult because rules won't let us leave the city limits," said president Beth Christian. "It came down to two places: the old gym or the Stanton Hanger."

"We hired a professional decorator who brought out a lot of ideas we probably wouldn't have thought of," said Bianca Rodriguez.

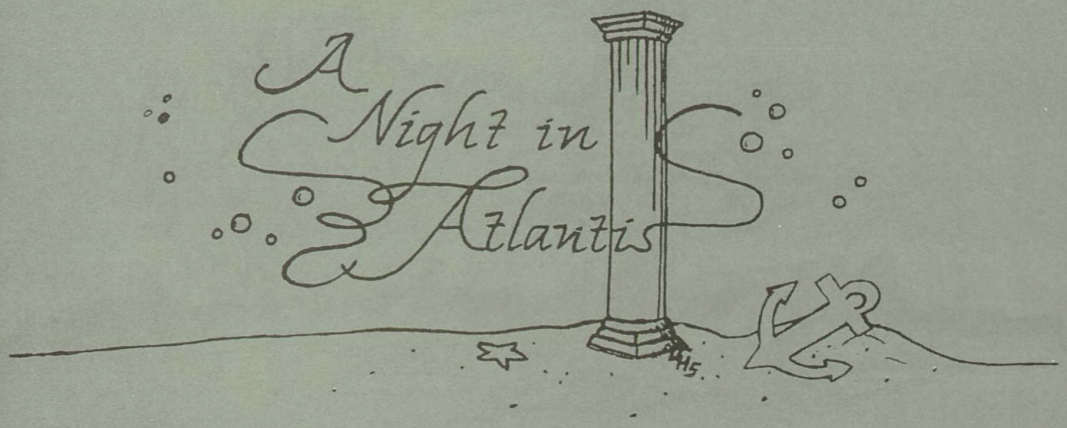
JR & SR PROM

SIGN OF THE TIMES: Juniors Laura Hayes and Sara Albers paint signs for the Prom.



All the hours spent in the concession stand and all the bakesales and fundraisers finally paid off for those junior class members who had rallied to raise enough money to host the prom spectacular.

Approximately 500 students and dates crowded into the Stanton Hanger May 9 to celebrate the annual ritual called Prom. Students spent hundreds of dollars and hours and hours of preparation and planning to make the evening just right.

Decorators accentuated the theme, "A Night in Atlantis," with thousands of colored balloons, an ice sculpture, and fish. A mobile DJ provided the music which was accompanied by a 10 ft. video screen playing videos of the songs.

"It was all very impressive," said junior Jim Teeter. "I wasn't really expecting so many decorations, but it looked great."

Revelers could have their pictures taken while at the dance with a choice of settings and then dance the night away.

Although most students thoroughly enjoyed the event, others found some aspects of the evening dissatisfying.

Senior Steve Clark said, "They played every Top 40 tune in existence (I guess there are about 40 of them) at a decibel level just below that of a 747. Then they played them again. Talk about unnecessary suffering."

Most prom goers, however, echoed the sentiments of sophomore Chrissie Schmoker. "For my first prom, it was great. Hopefully following proms will compare to this one," she said.

Back Stage Pass

During the course of the school year many events happened that did not affect everyone in the school. These little things mattered. It was the little memories that, when combined, made the year what it was, and although these memories were treasured most, they usually were forgotten because the yearbook had only so many pages and these pages were devoted to Homecoming and Prom and events of universal importance.

Realizing that, to get the most of our Tour '87, the AERIE staff created a mini-magazine, BACK STAGE PASS, to combine these memories. Sports, academics, fads, honors, and extracurricular activities are all covered in no particular order or circumstance.

We have tried to include personalities, feelings and ideas, for these shaped our lives and made 1987 different from any other year.

So sit back and enjoy, laugh and cry and remember.

Q. What is the most imporant thing that has happened, worldwide or in school, during this year since school began?

Tina Wolfe-Senior: "I am a senior this year. I'm on the brink of adulthood. That is what is important to me."

Victor Donahey-Senior "Being a senior this year is important to me, I don't know of anything worldwide that interested me."

Cindy Rowland-Senior "The most important thing that has happened in school is the butane gas explosion. This showed how well our school worked under pressure of a real disaster."

Richard Ninness-Junior "The cancellation of the "A TEAM" was devastating."

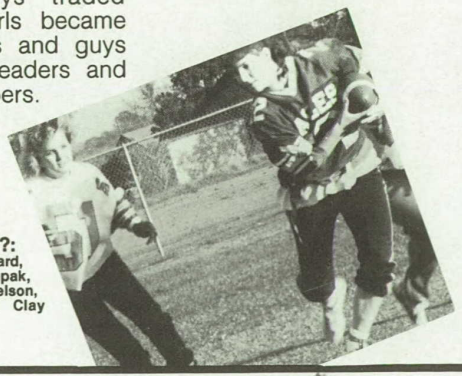
TRADING PLACES

It is possible that deep down inside, each girl wishes to don a football jersey and run up and down a football field. Then it may be possible that some guys like the idea of being a cheerleader or Georgette and having all eyes focused on them.

On November 14, the girls and guys traded places and girls became football players and guys became cheerleaders and drill team members.

On the cold November day the seniors beat the juniors, 16 to 6. Junior Bianca Rodrigez scored the junior's only touchdown. Seniors Trisca Rose and Lynn Cole scored the touchdowns for the seniors.

FOOTBALL PLAYERS??: Juniors Amy Pickard and Rochelle Collins try to stop senior Susan McDonald in her attempt to gain yardage.



CHEERLEADERS??: Mike Hewlett, Mike Rickard, George Zavala, Scott Supak, Scott Fisher, Eric Nelson, Cody Anderson, and Clay Shell.

LUCKY CHARM: Senior Amy Hodge reacts to being named football sweetheart as her uncle Bob Reeves looks on at halftime October 3. The Eagles went on to beat Copperas Cove 21-20.

TALK'S CHEAP

Students spend hours on it. Parents dread it. It sounds off at all hours of the night. The ringing of the telephone is here to stay.

Some students spent many hours on the phone, some didn't, but almost everyone used it.

When do students have time to talk on the phone? On weekends, after school, or anytime possible.

"I talk to my girlfriend for about three hours a day," said senior Mike Pratt.

ANYONE HOME?: Junior Lanae Galpin calls to check in with Mom and Dad.

BORN TO SHOP: Senior Courtney Kasper looks for just the right sweater to buy.

DECISIONS, DECISIONS: Senior Adam Callaway decides on which compact disc to purchase.

Shop 'till you Drop

"Uh yes ma'am, I'd like to try on the purple one, and the blue one because it matches my eyes, and I'll try on the green one. See, I'm a winter and it's my color."

Shopping! What better way to blow birthday, Christmas, or allowance money? There is nothing greater than leaving a mall with tons of purchases and new outfits.

"Everyone knows that girls love to shop. It's one of the best pastimes and hobbies. Of course there is one tiny drawback. It gets expensive especially when one is a compulsive buyer," said freshman Staci Chambers.

Guys like to go shopping, too. It's a universal hobby.

"I like to go shopping. It's pretty cool to go shopping with girls. They tell you what looks good and what doesn't," said sophomore Jimmy Taylor.

Gimme a Light

"When I walked out of the vocational wing I heard what sounded like a jet flying very low. When I turned around I could see black smoke and fire over the high school. Someone screamed that the school was on fire," said senior Kelly Bryant concerning the explosion.

Shortly after the start of fifth period on Tuesday, January 13, an explosion occured approximately 250 yards across the highway from the high school at a storage site holding thousands of gallons of butane. Authorities feared the initial fire might cause the explosion of two trucks and storage tanks holding over 40,000 gallons of butane, which would have possibly sent flaming gas and debris up to a quarter mile away. The high school and surrounding businesses were immediately evacuated.

Students evacuated their classrooms after Principal Tom Foster announced that everyone should immediately exit to the practice field east of the building. Students and faculty moved as far back as possible and a line of several buses lined up in front of the crowd for protection and in case the students needed to be moved quickly.

Students stood out in the cold weather for close to two hours while firefighters battled the blaze. Sophomore Sam Ingram remarked that the entire evacuation was an "organized mess."

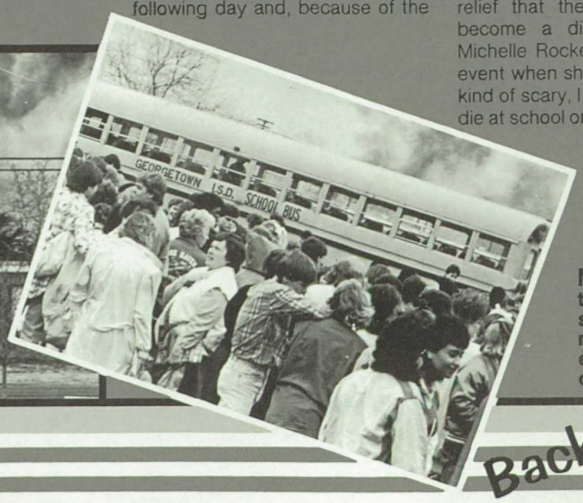
Soon after news of the incident spread, several television news helicopters arrived on the scene. Excited students created chaos trying to get on camera.

Students who had left campus for lunch found it impossible to return because police had blocked off all roads leading to the fire. Many students worried about the semester exams which began the following day and, because of the "early dismissal," they did not have the necessary materials to study for the exams.

"The whole ordeal was exciting but I wish it could have happened on a week when there wasn't already plenty with the semester tests going on," said sophomore Lee Davenport.

Another equally excited student, junior Chris Powell, said, "I stood there for awhile and watched the dark clouds billow into the air . . . then I got in my car and went to Sonic to get a number 2."

Although the general feeling among students afterwards was relief that the accident did not become a disaster, sophomore Michelle Rockett summed up the event when she remarked, "It was kind of scary, I mean who wants to die at school on a Tuesday?"



UP IN SMOKE: The butane fire across from the school caused lots of excitement and confusion.

MOB SCENE: During the gas explosion, students and faculty members were evacuated due to the danger of the explosion.

Cast Your Vote

Students running for class officers got a taste of the real world of politics.

"We had to give speeches. When I first signed up I was scared, but not that many showed up to hear speeches," said junior Jennifer Zeplin. Candidates gave speeches in the commons.

Voters got a voter registration card, which they kept for the remainder of the year.

"The cards were a flop, we were trying to make sure everyone got a chance to vote," said Assistant Principal Don Garrett.

Other student elections included Homecoming Queen, Mr. and Miss GHS, class favorites, cheerleaders, and student council officers.

IN THE SPOTLIGHT: Junior Beth Christian hangs up her sign urging voters to favor her for student council president.

JUST FOR YOU: Junior Sherri Sedwick shows her proof of identification to get her voter card from Miss LaTrell Voss.

Leg Men

What guy in the senior class has the best looking legs? According to popular response Scott Fisher's beat all contenders.

The contest was between Scott Fisher, Mike Rickard, Mike Hewlett, Daryl Taylor, and Trent Christian, and raised money for the senior class gift to the school and a memorial to Lara Lefforge. The guys went around with cans for donations, and whichever guy had the most money won the contest.

LOOK AT THEM LEGS: Seniors Beth Cuff and Julie Beniziger "vote" for Daryl Taylor's legs.

Q. If you could go back and live your high school years over, what would you do differently?

A. Senior Kelly Sharpe: "I would study more, drive a different car, and not go out with certain people that I have gone with."

A. Senior Kristy Schneider: "I would take certain people a little less seriously and go out a lot more."

A. Senior David Burgeson: "I would party less, study just a little more, and worry less about waking up for school. I would also have been more active in school activities with less clowning around."

A. Senior Meredythe Cavendar: "I would try to be more outgoing. I would also have liked to have been more athletic and more aggressive in tennis."

A. Senior Barbi Sabol: "I would study more, work harder, and take all my classes more seriously."

In The Basket

What does one senior from our school have in common with 47 other high school basketball players from all over Texas? That senior, Doug Peak, joined the 47 others in Houston at Rice University's Autry Court for the 5th Annual Coca Cola/Whataburger BCI Texas Shootout. Doug played for the South team.

Doug lead the Eagles to a 5-11 record for their first season in 5-A. Doug planned to continue playing basketball for Southwestern University

FINE PRINT

"When will the yearbooks be in?"

"Where have you been? The yearbooks got sent back because there were so many mistakes."

"So, when will we get them?"

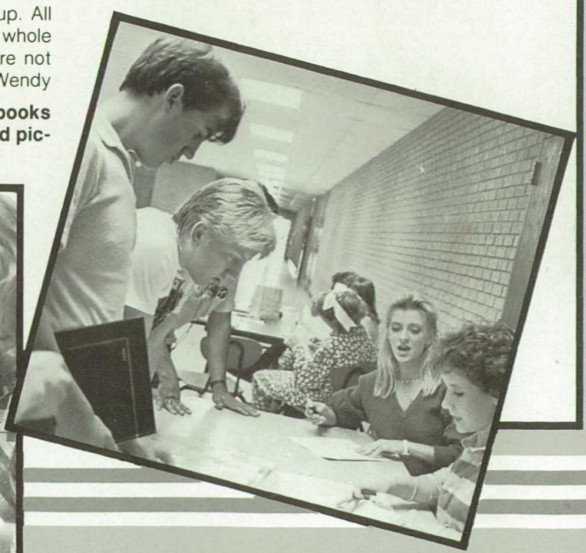
"Who knows?"

It was true there were some mistakes in the yearbook. Mistakes severe enough to have the books sent back to the publisher to be reprinted.

"The mistakes were terrible. In the clubs section they cut rows of people off from the waist up. All throughout the classes section they switched whole rows and names all around and pictures were not cropped right in lots of places," said editor Wendy Price. "So we decided to send them back and have them published right."

EXCITING MOMENTS: As the yearbooks came back, people gathered around to find pictures of themselves.

DON'T ASK ME: Sam Richey and Jason Chilton wait in line to get their yearbooks from Stephanie Jeffries and Wendy Price.



ULTRA PERFORMANCE

"It's the most wonderful night of my life," said the newly crowned Miss Georgetown Marcie Merritt.

As the curtain rose, 22 Miss Georgetown hopefuls performed the rousing number, "Hey Look at Me Now," which was also this year's theme. Miss Georgetown 1986, Pam Taylor performed "Diamonds are a Girl's Best Friend" for the crowd. Contestants were then escorted by a male family member to the microphone to introduce themselves and their sponsors.

Contestants were judged in four competitions including; evening gown, swimsuit, interview, and the talent competition.

Finally the results were announced. Stacy Davis received fourth runner-up, and Charlotte Walker received third. Stephanie Jeffries got second runner-up and Erica Edmiston was first runner-up. Each runner-up was given a rose and a banner designating her as a duchess.

When Merritt's name was called out as Miss Georgetown 1987, chaos broke out. Congratulations, hugs, kisses, and tears of joy filled the auditorium.

Other finalists included Ann Atkins, Julie Jenkins, Kathy Mason, Deborah Mossman, Karen Tillery, and Missy Williams.

Other awards included: Most Talented non-finalist, Amelia Miranda; Miss Congeniality, Kathy Mason; and Most Talented, Charlotte Walker.

ALL SMILES: Miss Georgetown Marcie Merritt

BATHING BEAUTIES: Contestants Stephanie Jeffries, Kathy Mason, and Marcie Merritt stand tall during the bathing suit competition.

NOW ANNOUNCING: Juniors Bianca Rodriguez and Matt Thomas MC at the coronation of Mr. and Miss GHS. They also announced the class favorites.

ROYALITY: Seniors Amy Hodge and Doug Peak were crowned Mr. and Miss GHS. The teachers selected eight seniors, four guys and four girls. The eight were selected on basis of citzenship and school participation. Voting then went to the student body where they choose one guy and one girl to represent them. The coronation was held in the new gym in February.

AIDS: An Epidemic

One of the most frightening aspects of the year came in the form of AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome). AIDS crippled the immune system leaving the victim susceptible to a variety of infectious diseases as well as forms of cancer.

AIDS could be obtained through having sex with an infected person or by sharing needles used to inject drugs. The virus, either present in blood, semen or vaginal secretions, could be transmitted from one homosexual partner to another and during sexual intercourse from a man to woman or woman to man.

"My 20's will not be full of promiscuity or free love. Every partner I have is a risk to my life. I think relationships will increase and dating will be on the decline," said senior Carolyn Blanchard.

The disease had no known cure, although some drugs slowed down the replication of the virus or boosted the immune system. About half of those diagnosed with AIDS died within one year.

Q. What is the biggest threat to your future and why?

Sophomore Angie Sprock: "Nuclear war, it's a threat to me because it's hard to imagine everything you've worked so hard for being gone with the push of a button."

Senior Guy Johnson: "My biggest threat is keeping my priorities straight because it's hard to lead a happy and successful life when your priorities are wrong."

Sophomore Jason Chilton: "People themselves are a threat because people kill people, people give people diseases, and people push the button for nuclear war."

Sophomore Dora Nemeth: "My biggest threat is AIDS because it has spread so fast and has already affected and killed a large amount of our population."

ON TOP

Georgetown High rated among the top high schools in the nation this year. That's the word that came from the Southern Association, a private accreditation firm which reviewed the operation of the school by observing classroom sessions and by conducting interviews with both students and faculty members in April.

The committee's final report rated GHS among top 10% of high schools in the nation.

DOWN MEMORY LANE

To preserve the school's heritage, with help from Superintendent Jack Frost and Ex-Students Association, old high school mementoes have slowly found their way in to the collection at the G.I.S.D. administration building.

Memetoes from as far back as 1902 are being added to the collection and include articles such as yearbooks, mortar boards, pictures, and graduation invitations.

"Gathering the school memorabilia is a project I've been wanting to tackle for some time," said Supt. Frost. "Other places I've been, I've seen too many instances of failure to preserve the schools' heritage and I didn't want it to happen here, where interest in history is so high."

IN HONOR OF . . .

IN MEMORIAM: Vocational Director Mr. Jim Cairnes and vocational teacher Mr. Arnim Humphreys present a plaque to Mrs. Ray Ragsdale in memory of her husband.

Soon after his death in 1986, a scholarship fund was established in the name of former welding teacher Ray Ragsdale. In addition, a plaque commemorating his years in the classroom was hung in the vocational wing.

EAGLE REMEMBERED: Superintendent Jack Frost stands with Mr. James Tippitt's stepson Clint Hawes, Mrs. Barbara Tippitt, and youngest son Michael Tippitt.

In memory of biology teacher James N. Tippitt,who died in 1986,a hand carved eagle now graces the freshman wing. The eagle serves as a lasting memorial for one of the most admired teachers in Georgetown's history.

SALYER FLIES HIGH

Sophomore David Salyer competed at 112-pounds for the Georgetown Wrestling Club and took first place in the Capital Area Regional Tournament in Austin. "At regionals I was pretty nervous before the tournament started but after my first match I felt pretty confident," said Salyer.

YOU BET YOUR LIFE

Parents for Pride were at it again, working hard all year planning the senior chemical free graduation party held June 1, from 10:00 p.m. until 3:00 a.m., at the Stanton Hanger. The theme for the party was boardwalk and students gambled the night away at the casino tables. With fake money winnings, students were able to buy items donated by local merchants. The prizes were impressive VCR's, jewelry, TV's, dorm room refrigerators, and trips to the Bahamas. All seniors were invited, provided they stayed "chemical free" throughout the party. Once they left they couldn't return. With so much going on, who wanted to leave?

FRANK SENT ME: Juniors Chuck Williamson and Laura Hayes wait for their turn on stage at the Fitzgerald-inspired speakeasy in the commons.

Junior English classes celebrated Great Gatsby Day April 3, in the commons annex which was transformed into a twenties-style speakeasy for the day. Posters featuring slogans and styles of the twenties decorated the walls, while authentic-looking waiters, Clint O'Rear and Ron Nemec manned the tables of teachers and students watching the featured entertainment.

Senior Shelley Davis and juniors Shelly Fredrickson and Annie Veerkamp sang and danced to some flapper tunes.

The Calendar Girls fashion show featured twelve junior girls dressed appropriately for each month of the year, in twenties styles. Among those parading across the stage were Jennifer Zeplin, Beth Christian, Luci Morrow, Marsha Miller, and Holly Grimes.

The stock market was a popular activity, reeling, rocking, rising, and finally crashing. Suzy Shelor and Doug McLean were among the more active participants.

Draeger Motor Company loaned a Gatsby style roadster to the party, which was parked outside of the annex.

Best Buddies

Trust. It is hard to come by and most people would admit to trusting very few. If that characteristic can be found in a person, he becomes a close friend, usually a "best friend".

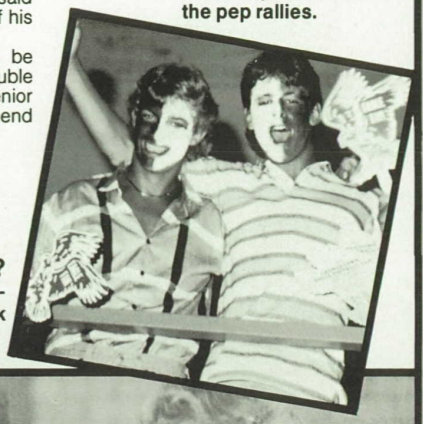
"I trust them. We understand each other and have a lot of fun together," said junior Mercy Bryant of her two good friends Janet Bohanan and Jennifer Plentl.

"Amy Harvey, Charlotte Fox, Nichole Iwers, Rhonda Doerfler, and I are best friends because we all get along and all have a lot of the same problems," said junior Wendy Price.

"We think a lot alike and have the same interests," said sophomore Bryan Hagan of his best friend Cory Conner.

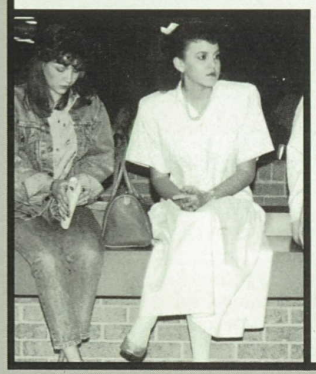
"Knowing that she will be there for you in time of trouble is very imporant," said senior Kim Brent of her best friend Melodee Norment.

OUT OF CONTROL: Juniors Shane Stark and Mike McMaster show school spirit at one of the pep rallies.



WHATTA YA REAH? Seniors Melodee Norment and Kim Brent talk about weekend plans.

SITTING PRETTY: Senior Tina Spruiell and sophomore Christy Butler sit and wait for the bell during lunch.



What's Yellow And Black and Rode all Over?

"On Board" signs took the lead in the "Most Worthless Fad" category this year.

The signs, which originated as serious warnings cautioning drivers to be aware of a "Baby on Board," soon took a ludicrous turn by telling motorists about a "Mother-in-Law in Trunk" or "Party Animal on Board." The yellow car signs, presumably the successors to the 'I Love — ' bumper stickers of the early eighties, caught the fancy of many students.

The $2.50 price tag made the sign affordable but the majority of students questioned felt that "On Board" signs would be a trend that came and went.

A Friend In Need

When one of our own found himself in trouble this year, there was no hesitation in going to his aid.

Senior Eric Nelson learned in the fall that his one good kidney was beginning to fail, and not only did that deny him a last year on the varsity football team, but treatment and doctor's bills put Eric and his mother Carolyn, in dire financial trouble.

When Eric's problem became known, a volleyball tournament with proceeds going to a fund set up in his name was scheduled.

"I'm looking forward to helping out," said Mrs. Alice Benson. "It's nice to see our community getting together to support a good cause."

"I'm playing for student council and basketball," said junior Bianca Rodriguez. "I think it's an imaginative way to raise money."

The Art of Research

BRIGHT IDEA: Senior George Zavala works on his research paper.

To write or not to write. That is not the question. The English teachers made it impossible to pass without writing a research paper.

Teachers required every grade level to write a paper. Each teacher had a list of topics for their students to choose from.

Requirements included notecards, bibliography cards, many sheets of paper for the rough draft, and a typewriter or computer for the final copy.

TO THE WORD: Seniors Karen Tillery and Todd Ross work on their research papers in the library.

Q. What's the one thing you want to accomplish in life?

Sophomore Cheryl Stark: "To marry that special guy, raise a good family. And live life to its fullest."

Freshman Staci Chambers: "Probably the most important thing to me in life is to find my self-identity. If I do this I can be happy with myself and have a reason to like life."

Sophomore Cory Conner: "To move out of the house because I've lived there all my life so far-so, I can be free and not have to worry about anything."

Junior Stephanie Walker: "I guess my goal in life is to be happy. I sort of want to marry Monte, but don't tell him that. I also want to write, like books or something."

Two of a Kind

Some of them got along with each other, some didn't. Some of them shared classes, some didn't. But the one thing they did share, was their birthday. Who were they? They were twins, and there were a lot of them.

Nick and Marc Tomasulo shared looks which they said had its drawbacks because people always got them mixed up.

"If someone sees me and likes me, I only want them to like me, not my brother also!" said Marc Tomasulo.

Many people didn't realize how many twins there were because most treat them as only one person. As Hans Yondle, identical twin of Kyle Yondle, said, "People just treat us as only one person rather than two separate people because we look exactly alike and that's what other people see through their eyes."

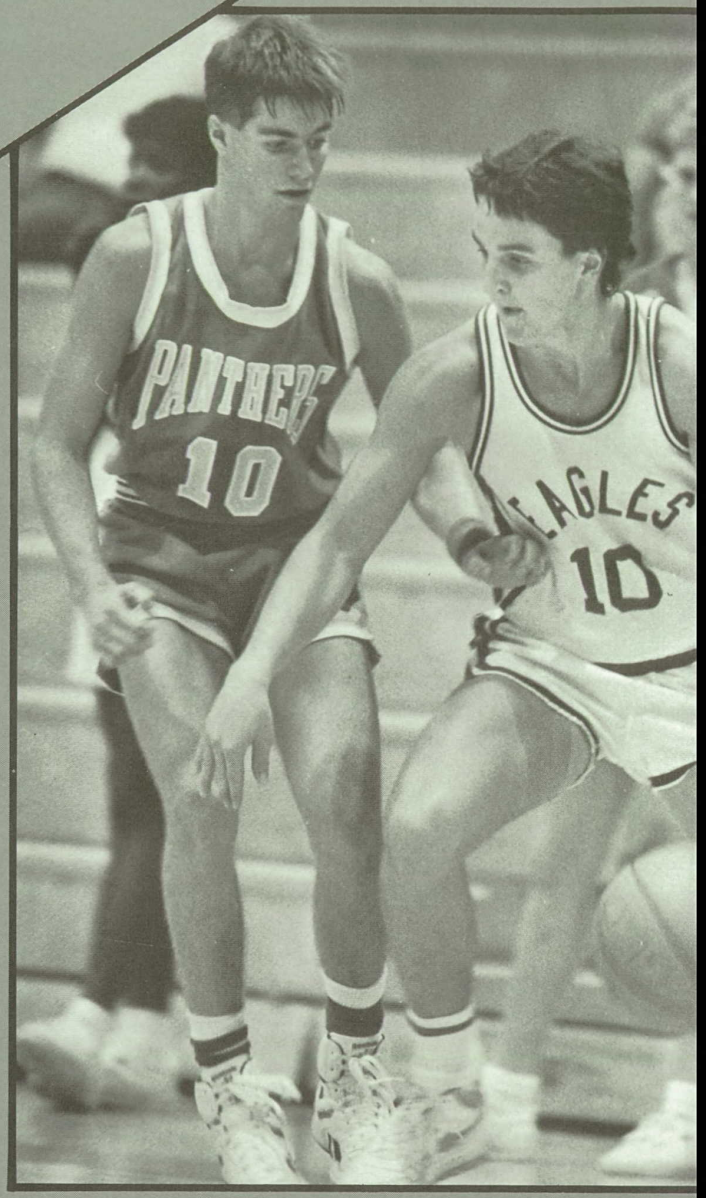
Sports

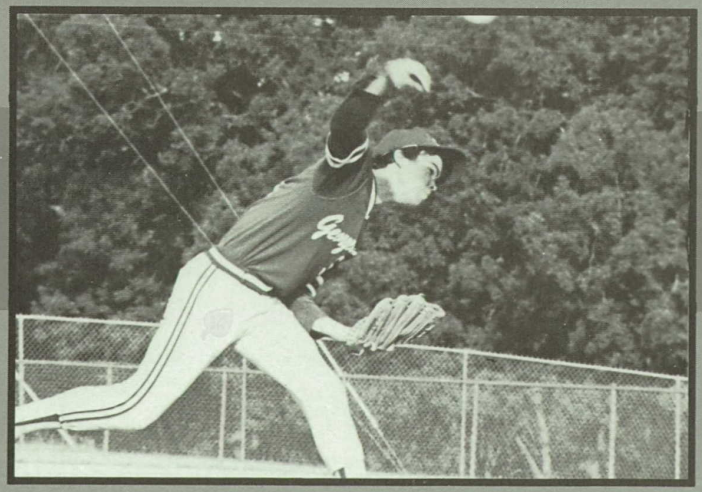
How is a team judged? Was it on the win-loss record? Or was it on the dedication and determination to never give up even when no hope for winning was in sight?

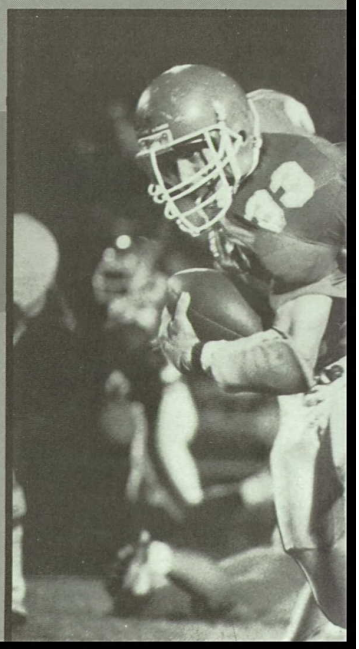
While no team this year won a district championship, most had winning records, and considering the fact that this was the first year in a new 5A district with state powerhouses such as Temple and Killeen with twice the student enrollment, GHS athletes could be proud of the fact that they rose to meet the challenge.



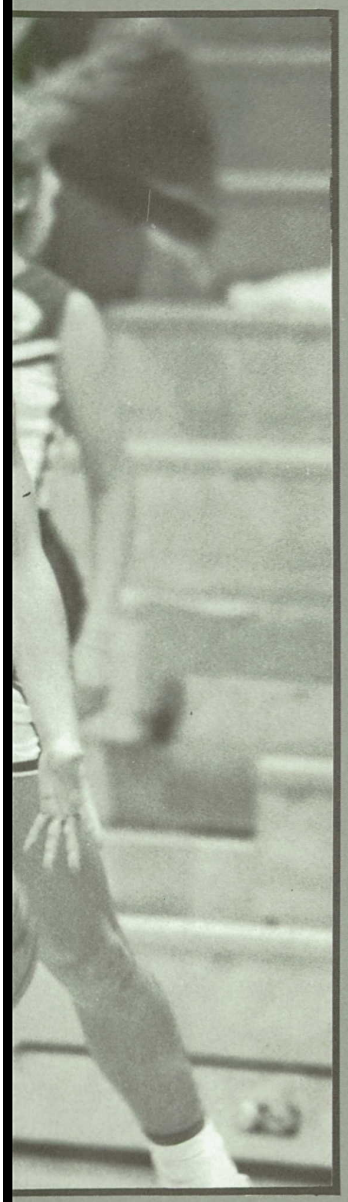
OUTTA MY WAY: Point guard Doug Peak manuevers down the floor for a score.

THROWING HOME: JV player Kenny Key hurls the ball to home plate for an out.

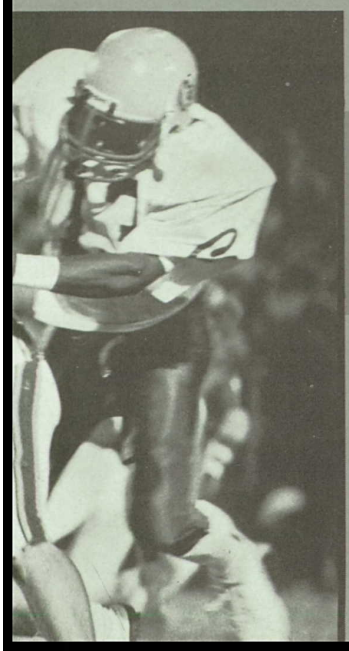




GOAL SETTER: Soccer players Marla Stephenson and Lynn Lozano dribble the ball for a goal during soccer practice.



HANDS UP: Varsity players Bianca Rodriguez and Amy Varnell attempt a block over their Killeen opponent.



DON'T STRETCH THE MATERIAL: Trent Christianson pulls away from an opponent during a hard fought game.

Coming Up SHORT

Eagles record 2-7-1 in a 5A debut

Frustration. Disappointment. Tenacity. All these words summed up the first year in 5A for the varsity Eagles. A new district which pitted the Eagles against state ranked teams like Temple, Waco and Killeen proved too much for the team, still smarting from a 4-6 1985 season. A new slate of coaches lead by Head Coach Art Briles, tried to breathe new life into the team by introducing a wishbone offense, but even though the Eagles put a scare into teams like Waco and Round Rock, too often the Eagles faltered. Quarterback Mike Rickard keyed the Georgetown offense completing 10 of 14 passes for 139 yards in a 12-12 tie with Taylor for the first game of the season.

"It's more important to be a has been than a never was."

Taylor moved ahead 6-0 on their first possession of the game which was the only score of the first half.

The second half opened with strong defense from the Eagles which turned into two Taylor safeties.

The Eagles took over the ball on their own 36 with 10 minutes left to play, marched to Taylor's four yard line in five plays. Rickard then took it in from the four giving Georgetown a 10-6 lead. Rickard then scored on the two point conversion making the score 12-6.

The Ducks countered the attack with a 26-yard run by Augie Lopez taking the ball to the four. Lopez then hit Leonard Winn with the game tying pass. Taylor missed their conversion but continued pressing on Georgetown's door as time expired.

The Eagles hosted the Killeen Kangaroos September 12. The Kangaroos scored the first five times they had the ball and breezed to 38-0 win.

Anthony McDowell, the All-State running back, rolled up 82-yards and three touchdowns on 11 carries. Killeen gained 414 yards, 304 the first half.

"Despite disappointment, we got beat, and we got beat soundly by a good football team." Coach Art Briles said. "We will have to work on our mental attitude more than anything else. We have to get our heads back up and be ready to play," Coach Briles said.

In the third game the Eagles took the field against rival Round Rock. The Dragons seemed to have an easy time defeating the Eagles 27-8, Round Rock totaled 401 yards in their winning effort.

Georgetown chalked up their first victory of the season by beating the San Antonio Edison Bears 25-13. San Antonio took an early first quarter lead but remained scoreless throughout the second and third quarters while Georgetown tallied up 19 points. Both teams scored six points in the fourth but failed the conversion afterwards.

Quarterback Mike Rickard ran for two touchdowns and passed for one touchdown in the winning effort.

Coming Up Short

Georgetown then pulled out an upset over the tough Copperas Cove Bulldogs. They went into the game a fifteen point underdog and came out with a 21-20 victory.

Georgetown took an early lead from a three yard touchdown by Scott Crawford. Georgetown then intercepted a pass and drove the ball to the 21 yard line. With good runs from Chris Brooks, Trent Christianson scored from the one.

Cove retaliated to make the score 14-7, Cove then drove the ball again but Kelly Webb stopped the drive with an interception. The Eagles drove and Brooks scored to end the first half.

Then after a penalty gave them a first down, in the second half, Cove scored a touchdown. The extra point was blocked by Daryl Taylor.

With 1:16 to go Perez missed on what could have been the winning field goal. Georgetown was called for roughing, giving Cove a first down. The Eagles held the Bulldogs on the next three plays but Cove could win with a field goal. Perez, however, missed to the left again and Georgetown emerged victorious. The Eagles played Ellison Eagles next. Ellison scored on its first three possessions of the second half to open their to 38-15 to clinch the win.'

Ellison appeared ready to put the game away in the second quarter, blocking two punts, but failed to capitalize either time.

Ellison came out the second half ready to dominate the game. Georgetown could not come back from 38-15 deficit and surrendered to their third loss of District 14 5A.

Georgetown was led by Mike Rickard who threw 3 of 11 passes and Kelly Webb who completed 6 of 9 for a total of 205 yards combined. The leading rusher for Georgetown was Scott Crawford with 90 yards.

Westwood brought a high-powered offense and a destructive defense to spoil Georgetown's Homecoming game, October,17. When the smoke cleared Westwood had bombed the Eagles 70-7.

"It was one of those things that got worse and worse as the game went on," Coach Art Briles said.

Westlake scored early and held Georgetown scoreless to win 24-0 October 24, to win their first district game. The Chaps scored on the second play of the game on an 85 yard touchdown by Mickey Rose.

A 31 yard fieldgoal came with 10:37 left in the first quarter making Andy Locke's 28th career fieldgoal, a new Texas high school record.

Westlake capitalized on Georgetown's mistakes to tally up a 24 point lead which ended up as the final score.

Georgetown faced district front runner Waco High Halloween night and gave the Lions a scare to remember.

The Lions came to town favored by 26 points but had to come from behind in the third quarter to retain their first place lead in District 14 AAAAA.

Georgetown had a chance to win with two minutes in the fourth quarter but a disputed fumble at the 36 yard line gave the ball back to Waco to run the clock out.

Georgetown cross country teams leaped into the 5AAAAA classification this year with stride, advancing two runners,Suzette Neeley and Aaron Vanderpool, to regionals. During district competetion Suzette finished fifth overall and Aaron finished fourth. Suzette and Cindy Van Namen represented the team at district competition. As a team the boys varsity finished third overall at the district meet behind Westwood and Killeen Ellison. Other runners who did well at the meet included Kevin Denney, Robert Honstein, Daniel Burgeson, Raymond Perez, and Mark Seeley.

The junior varsity team, lead by Elaine Valentour placed second overall at the district meet. The freshmen boys also took second in district paced by Jeff Poe who placed fourth overall.

At the Round Rock Invitational the boys varsity team finished fifth out of a fourteen team field. The girls varsity placed seventh. The freshmen team placed second in the meet with freshman sensation Neil Messing having the highest individual placing of sixth of all teams.

In the regional competition at Arlingtons' Vandergriff Park, Suzette placed 42nd out a 100 runner field and Vanderpool finished 39th. Only the top five runners advanced to the state competition.

"They found that the overall pace of 5AAAAA was much faster than the old 4AAAA class," Coach Mark Townsend said.

What a SET UP

Team posts respectable season.

Initiation into 5A proved to be trial and error for the varsity volleyball squad, according to Coach Molly Frazier."

"I think this year was a good practice for me," she said. "The girls helped me for next year's season."

Although only a few starters returned from last year's district runner-up team, the first 5A team finished with a 10-6 record and placed fourth in the district. The team's overall record was 19-10.

"All I wanted was a .500 season," Frazier said."

"We faced so many obstacles in volleyball this past season, especially facing new teams in 5A," said senior Karen Porfirio. "But we stayed together as a team and survived all the pressures of the early morning practices."

In class 4A the team had six weeks to prepare for the season, but this year the team, limited to only one week, had to prepare quickly.

"Members were disappointed because they didn't get to play any games in the new gym complex," Coach Frazier said.

> "All I wanted was a .500 season."

The varsity team was lead by all district selection Lynn Cole, (first team) Lori White, (second team) and Hyla Hundley, (third team).

"Being in 5A was more competitive than 4A and made me a much tougher coach," said Coach Frazier. "The girls really helped me out through this year."

Out of all the years of volleyball, the 1986 season was the toughest year we had," said senior Julie Jenkins.

Cole highlights tough season

They played the best of teams and they played the worst of teams, but the whole time the girl's varsity basketball team kept fighting.

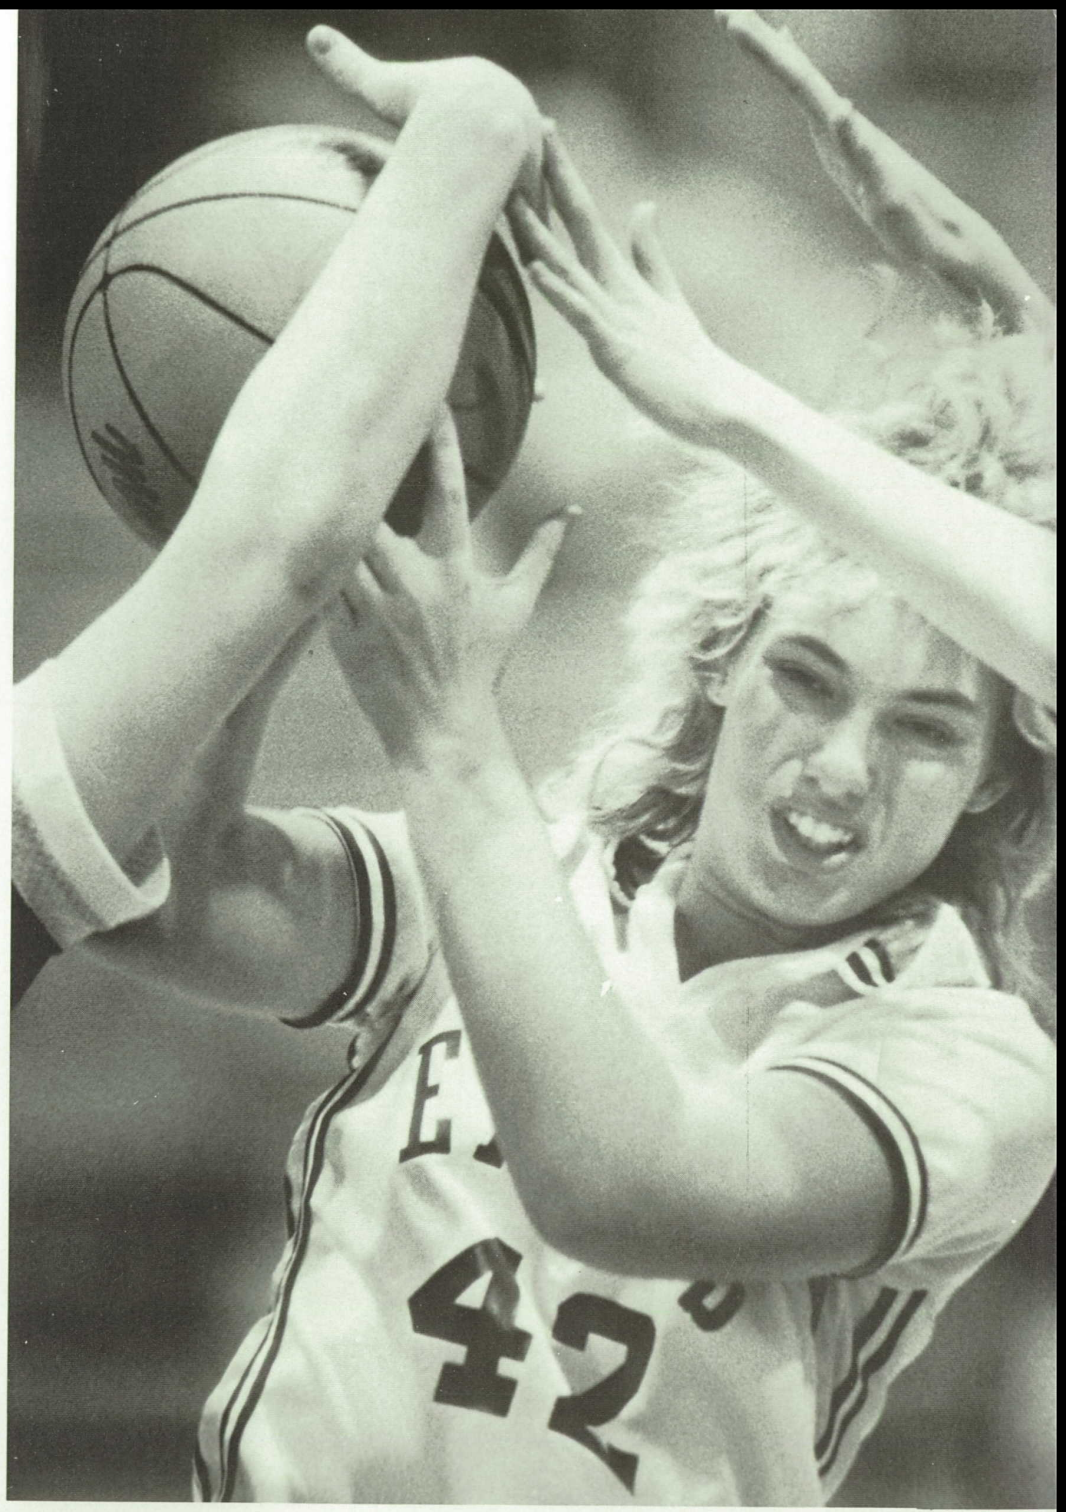
The girls battled hard twice a week to earn respect from such district powerhouses as Westlake, Temple, and Waco. The team lost to state ranked Westlake in an overtime game and beat Waco in a pre-district game. Overall the varsity ended the season with a record of 12-17, 6-10 in district.

Senior Lynn Cole led the team in almost every aspect of the game. Cole, a first team all district selection, shot, rebounded, and stole her way into the spotlight. She averaged 20 points 10 rebounds, and five steals a game to boost her chances for a major college scholarship. She signed with Stephen F. Austin University at the end of the season.

In non-district play, the team faced such area foes as Lanier, the 5A state runnerup, and LBJ and Midway.

Joining Cole on the all district team were two other Lady Eagles. Junior guard Kristin Curtis was recognized as a second team choice, and senior Trisca Rose was named to the honorable mention list.

"The girls fought hard and never gave up the entire year," said Coach Cathy Sefcik. "It was a tough season. Except for Copperas Cove and maybe Killeen, everybody was tough."



HANDS OFF: Junior Amy Remmert fights hard to keep her Killeen opponents from stealing the ball.

5A Teams Prove to be RUTHLESS PEOPLE

Roundballers post disappointing season

Hopes of playing the spoiler in the newly formed District 14AAAAA basketball race turned into a nightmare as the varsity basketball team ended the season with an overall record of 16-17, and 5-11 in district.

The tough season, highlighted by an early win over the eventual 2A state runner-up Liberty Hill, also featured a split with Westlake. The losing struggle with the traditional rival Chaps came in Georgetown.

Many times the Eagles played a tight first half only to be defeated by the opposing team's depth in the final few minutes.

Senior point guard Doug Peak led the team, averaging 12 points and 3.6 assists per game. Peak earned a spot on the second team all-district team as a result of his leadership on the floor. Senior Kelly Webb, a three-year letterman, gathered an average of 5.4 rebounds a game to provide the strength on the boards.

Senior guard Jeff Hempel said, "At the beginning of the year, I thought we were going to do pretty well, but it turned out to be pretty stiff competition in district."

"All in all, I was satisfied this year," said Coach Maurice Varnell. "I knew we would have a tough time in district, but we played well in several games."

Girls Make HOOPLA!

Subvarsity girls have winning seasons

Driven by the will to succeed against stiff competition, the subvarsity girl's basketball teams flew by district and non-district foes.

The JV girls finished the year with a record of 15-11, 7-9 in district. The team tallied the first winning season in 5A for the basketball Eagles.

The cream rose to the top as the freshman girl's team completed the season with an awesome record of 17-7, 11-5 in district. The team won first place in the Round Rock and Leander tournaments.

"When we were in district, it was tougher to get the wins that we had gotten earlier in the season," said sophomore Kim Reierson.

Freshman Marcie Fisher said, "The games we played helped us grow together as a team."

Subvarsity boys find it tough in 5A

Peaks and valleys highlighted a season that finished with a record of 12 wins and 16 losses for the JV boys basketball team.

At one point the team lost eight games straight. However, they returned to the district race with a four game winning streak in the second round of district.

"It really felt good to get a win after those eight loses,"said sophomore Jason Gutierrez. The team finished with a district record of 5-10. Juniors Mark Cumberland and Keith Shelley led the team with an average of nine points per game. Junior Tom Spalik led the team in rebounds.

The freshman boys faired equally during the season. The freshman "A" team compiled a 12-16 record. Rugged 14AAAAA competition left the team with a 6-8 record in district. The newly formed freshman "B" team felt the crunch of 5A competition, also. The "B" team finished the year 7-10, 6-8 in district.

"The kids played hard but the ball just didn't bounce our way," said Coach Mike Horn.

Golfers get TEED OFF!

Golf teams have heart-breaking seasons

District 14AAAAA proved to be too much for the boys' and girls' golf teams this year. The season had high scores and low scores, disappointing finishes and top finishes. All of these compiled a season in which the team finished no lower than tenth place in a tournament.

Unlike many other sports, the varsity team changed weekly to accommodate the best scores from the previous week.

The team posted many low scores at tough courses such as Lago Vista, Georgetown Country Club, and Mill Creek.

In district, the girls finished in fifth place behind state powerhouses Temple and Westwood. The boys' JV team topped the JV division while the varsity finished district in sixth place.

Sophomore John Denney said, "I like golf because it's a sport that I can play for the rest of my life."

"Golf is a challenging sport, in that no two courses or holes can be played the exact same way every time," said sophomore Christie Calta.

Coach Bob McLeroy said, "We played well until district but we got ourselves into a hole the first day so that we couldn't get back into contention."

Tennis Teams

NET RESULTS

Like most other sports, tennis teams had a bumpy introduction into 5A, but a final record of 14-4-1 showed they fared better than most.

"The caliber of play was definitely higher in 5A," said Coach Kerry Minzenmeyer. "But our team handled the adjustment well." The team held hopes of winning district, but a second place finish was the best the young team could do.

"It seemed like as the season went on the errors made by the team members grew more scarce," said varsity manager Cindy Castle.

"It wasn't really any different than 4A," said sophomore Shanna Wilingham.

"We practiced poorly, but when we got in serious play the kids played great," said JV Coach Sharon Landry. "We were inexperienced going into the season but the kids showed a lot of determination. The girls took second in district and the boys captured fourth. Jessica Heath placed second in district this year for JV."

Let's Make TRACKS

Cole shoots for fourth

Sending two girls to regionals and one to state highlighted an otherwise underwhelming girl's track season.

Head Coach Molly Frazier, along with the help of coaches Sherry Rhoads, and Ellen Lindemann, did an admirable job of keeping each team on "in the running."

Even though 4th place for varsity, 3rd for J.V., and 4th for freshmen, were the highest places overall brought home, team members continued to be optimistic.

The highlight of the season came during the state meet in May when senior Lynn Cole came home with a 4th place in the shot put.

Under coaches Brent Buck, John Baskin, Mark Townsend, and Larry Moorhead, boys tracksters proved they could compete in 5A by setting many individual records. Although no one broke a school record, Tim Shanahan tied the school record in the pole vault at 13'6".

Boys who lettered in track included seniors Shelly Davis, Raymond Perez, Jeff Sandford, and David Saunders, all with one year. Senior Kevin Denny lettered with one year and earned the Track Heart Award. Robert Honstein, who lettered two years won the Outstanding Track Award. Freshman Tim Shanahan also lettered with one year.

Others contributing to the good track season included juniors Miguel Vasquez and Tom Shanahan, sophomores Corey Jackson, Jason Taylor, Brett Sweet, Allan Johns, and Lee Davenport, and freshmen Jay Stewart and Neil Messing.

Eagles find batters CAGED!

Batters power Eagles into 14AAAAA

A new challenge mounted for the baseball Eagles as they journeyed into 14AAAAA. The season went fairly well even though it culminated in a bitter taste. The varsity finished the season with a record of 15-11, 10-6 in district. The Eagles' chance of a second consecutive trip to the playoffs fell through with only a week to go in the season.

The Eagles split with Westlake, Westwood, and Round Rock, the three teams that finished the season tied for first place.

Seniors Todd Mantz and Mike Rickard led the team in both pitching and hitting. Mantz finished the year with a 7-4 record, recording 84 strike outs in 58 innings. With this performance, Mantz won a scholarship to NAIA powerhouse Southwestern. Rickard, the Eagles' "Most Valuable Player," ended the year with a 2-3 record, and landed 75 strikeouts in 56 innings on the mound. At the plate the twosome combined to carry most of the offensive weight. Mantz terminated the year batting an impressive .486, with six homers, 34 RBI's and an on-base percentage of .566. Rickard hit .328 with two homeruns, 13 RBI, and 31 runs scored.

Several members of the team also contributed to its success. Senior Mike Hehman, a three year letterman, finished the year with a 4-4 record on the mound. Sophomore Daniel Mishler and junior Eric "Psyche" Geigley both added to the team's batting percentage by hitting over .317. Other senior members cited for strong play included Kelly Webb, Rodney Cosper, Shawn Donahey, Scott Pope, and Jeff Hulme.

Coach Bruce Katt said, "We knew at the outset that we had good pitching and we knew our hitting would be decent, but we didn't expect our hitting to win most of our games for us."

"As I see it, we finished in a tie for second place, the only problem was that there were three teams tied for first," said Mantz.

One of the best Eagle records this year came as the JV baseball team hammered a 14-7-2 overall season and defeated such powerhouses as Round Rock, Killeen, Waco, Westlake and Westwood.

Sophomore Brian Anderson led by batting .426, junior Tommy Leonard scored 25 runs, and sophomore Dario Valdez had 23 hits, and 23 RBI.

"For the first time in 5A, we did real well, but we're looking forward to a better and more successful season next year," said sophomore Anthony Avizenis.

KICKING TURF

Booters hang tough in 5A

More teams and more competition in 5A diminished hopes for the varsity soccer team to move into the 25AAAAA playoffs.

"We were really confident at the beginning of the season, but the teams we played had more experience playing tougher teams than we had," said senior Mark Seeley.

The team's overall record of 8-10 did little to reflect the excitement of a season that posted a fourth place finish in district.

"We lost some close games which took us out of the playoff picture," said junior Shane Stark.

The team opened the season posting wins over New Braunfels, Hays, and Reagan. Mark Seeley and Paul Christie dominated in scoring and Mike Pratt and Shane Stark commanded the defense.

The Eagles then lost the next two games to Waco and Westwood. District play opened with a 4-1 loss to Westwood. Mark Seeley powered the offense and Brian Martinez sparked the defense.

The Eagle booters then won three in a row, blowing out Killeen Ellison and Leander and winning a thriller in overtime against Round Rock. Mark Seeley and Mike Pratt led the offense while Mike McMaster and David Stevens led the defense.

The Eagles then fell into a slump in in district losing four in a row. Copperas Cove and Killeen both swept the Eagles. The team then had their toughest struggle against Westlake. The Eagles fell 1-0. "We thought we could take Westlake. We lost by our own mistakes though," said junior Paul Christie. The Eagles then lost to Westwood to start the second round of district.

Killeen Ellison and Leander fell to the Eagles next. Cory Conner and Sean Wetzel soared on offense and Bradon Downs held up the defense. The Eagle booters finished out the season losing the last four.

Ladies strive for recognition

At the season's onset, fans of the girls varsity soccer team could foresee at least a district championship but as the season wore on their hopes diminished as the girls were unable to win their district matches.

Their 8-8 overall record and their 3-7 distrct record reflect the disappointment. The lady Eagles opened with five out of six wins in predistrict play.

They then lost the next seven of ten remaining games to finish a disheartening season.

"We were really confident going into district but we just couldn't win the tough games," said junior Janet Bohanan

Teams Face Uphill STRUGGLE

J.V. hustles for experience

Hopes for a successful JV season ended in disappointment as the boys posted a 3-7 district record, and the girls recorded a 2-4 district record. The boys defeated powerhouses New Braunfels 4-1, Waco 3-1, and Killeen 5-2. The JV showed promise but the many losses drowned their hopes for a successful start in their young high school career.

"We thought we had a better chance of winning some more games but the teams we played were too competitive for us," said freshman Ryan Smith.

In their first year of play the JV girls team had a losing season but showed promise for the development of soccer at Georgetown High. They posted wins over Westlake 3-2, LBJ 1-0, and Round Rock 3-2.

Cole, Webb Chosen

SUPER STARS

This year the yearbook staff selected seniors Kelly Webb and Lynn Cole as the Aerie Athletes for 1987. Both of these students participated in three sports while maintaining college-bound grades.

Kelly "Neckbone" Webb played baseball, basketball, and football all four years of high school. He lettered three years in basketball and football and two years in baseball.

Kelly's honors included Honorable Mention All-District offense in 1985 and second team All-District defense in 1986 for football. In basketball he received All-Tournament in 1986.

"The highlight of my high school career," Kelly said, "was beating Westlake in the final seconds of the game." Kelly's fifty-two yard "Hail Mary" pass to Rodgy Nesby boosted the Eagles to a win in 1985.

Lynn Cole participated in volleyball, basketball, and track during high school. She lettered two years in volleyball, three years in basketball, and an impressive four years in track.

Lynn's dramatic high school accomplishments included placing fifth in shot-put at the state level and receiving Most Valuable Player track runner her freshman year. She also received First Team All-District in basketball and placed third in shot-put at the regional track meet her sophomore year. The list continues with Lynn placing second in shot-put and fourth in discus at the state track meet and placing 31st out of 150 at the U.S. Olympic Sports Festival her junior year. Lynn placed first in regional shot-put and went on to place fourth at the state track meet her senior year.

"Missing half the volleyball season when I dislocated my shoulder," Lynn said, "was the worst thing that happened to me in athletics."

Selection as Aerie Athletes pleased both Kelly and Lynn. "It makes me feel as if all my work was worth something," Kelly said. "Being chosen as Aerie Athlete two years in a row was really an honor," Lynn added.

Kelly plans to further his education at Texas Tech University in Lubbock. Lynn signed a full four-year scholarship to play basketball at Steven F. Austin University in Nacogdoches.

LETTER OF INTENT: Letterman Lynn Cole signs her Ladyjack athletic scholarship papers to Stephen F. Austin State University as her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Cole, and Coach Cathy Sefcik look on.

EASY OUT: Senior Kelly Webb-fields a pop up in a baseball game against Temple.

PROUD PARENTS: Mr. and Mrs. George Webb escort their son Kelly onto the floor during Parents Night.

Clubs

A large part of enjoyment outside of classes came from being a part of a group or organization. Some groups dedicated themselves to community service while others fostered an interest in subject matter or future careers. "Being in Georgettes gave me the experience of being involved in a team organization," said junior Katy Schulze.

Senior Keri Hanna said, "I decided to be in Future Teachers of America since I was an elementary aide. We didn't have much time to do things in class and being in F.T.A. allowed us that extra time."

All clubs had something to offer. An estimated 50% of all students belonged to some sort of club or organization.

PENSIVE MOMENT: Senior Cindy Hughes patiently awaits the begining of the semi-formal F.B.L.A. installation in the fall. Approximately 50 FBLA members enrolled in some sort of business class.

CHEER UP

Cheerleaders keep spirits high

By the time the first day of school rolled around, the three cheerleader squads had already put in hundreds of hours for practice, sign painting, and competition.

In the Spring of 1986, people competing for a position on one of the cheerleading squads performed before a group of judges first, and then in front of the student body.

"At first I thought it would be really bad, but that's the way it should be. You shouldn't get cheerleader only by popularity," said varsity cheerleader junior Jennifer Zeplin.

This year introduced firsts in many ways. This year presented a ten-member varsity squad and the first male cheerleader in a number of years.

"Having a boy on the squad was different, but fun. We were able to do more in the way of cheers and pyramids," said senior varsity cheerleader Meredythe Cavender.

All three squads attended camp in July. The varsity squad came in second place out of over two hundred squads.

"Camp was great! I was so excited to get to compete in the finals . . . and then we made runner up! " said Meredythe.

All of the squads had many practices, some even at 5:30 in the morning.

"We were really tired. The only bad part was when we had to line up and do jumps," said Jennifer.

The varsity cheerleaders worked every week to plan the pep rallies to keep spirits high.

"It takes a lot of dedication and hard work, but it is very rewarding," said Meredythe.

Janet Bohanan managed the varsity cheerleaders.

"Being the cheerleader manager is a great experience. I get to work with different people. We've already become great friends," said Janet.

The final pep rally allowed football season to go out with a bang. All three squads combined for 'Two Bits' and the school song.

Treble Klett

Band carries tradition into 5A

At the close of marching season the band began to prepare for concert season. At that time the band divided into three concert bands: Honor, Symphonic, and Concert.

Honor band, directed by Mr. Rodney Klett and Ms. Susan Mendel, readied themselves for competitions. The band competed in UIL District concert and sight-reading, and received superior ratings. At the State Wind Ensemble, the band got superior ratings again. The band travelled to Louisiana in May to compete in Contraband Days which proved to be another big success. It received superior ratings, tied for best in class, and tied for best overall concert. Some members competed in the Texas State Solo and Ensemble.

Symphonic band, directed by Mr. Michael Shaff, went to the same competitions as Honor band. In the UIL District concert, it received a superior rating, and in sight-reading it received an excellent rating. At Contraband Days, Symphonic band received excellent ratings. A superior rating in the State Wind Ensemble gave the band another reason to be proud.

Concert band, directed by Mr. David Brooks, combined with the other two bands at Contraband Days where the entire band received another superior rating.

All three bands played for the annual Dessert Concert and Turkey Dinner Concert. They used the money raised to help pay for the trip to Contraband Days.

Marching On

Band goes to state in 5A bow

What's the winningest team on campus? Success on the state level came to only one organization in the first year of 5A competition. The band, like many other organizations, started practicing during the summer with approximately 160 members. They welcomed Mr. David Brooks as the new percussion teacher.

Head Drum Majors Karen Carlson and Adrian Guzman helped keep heads high on the field.

"We were serious about our work when we needed to be and we also made it extra fun," said senior Karen Carlson.

Six or seven members attended summer camps at various colleges. Adrian and Karen went to Texas Lutheran College for a week of improving responsibility and leadership skills.

The band learned five different routines for marching season, and they performed a different combination of them each Friday night.

Beginning the last week of October, the band went to marching contests. They placed high enough at district and region to go on to state preliminaries November 11 before finally falling to more experienced 5A bands.

This band, as usual, proved to be a little bit different from the ones before it.

"This year's band proved to be unique because this was the first year to compete in 5A, and I felt they were successful moving up to a higher district," said Director Mr. Rodney Klett.

ON OUR WAY: Junior Randy Thomas and senior Stacy Fuller express their happiness after the band was chosen to go to region.

That's Entertainment

Choir stays busy all year

Members of the choir did not waste any time getting started with money making projects this year. Under the direction of Mr. Neal Campbell and Mr. Bruce Johnson,they held a garage sale at the end of September to begin raising the needed funds, and at the end of March, sponsored the Talent Show.

The group gave several concerts throughout the year, including the Christmas Concert and the Spring Concert at the end of May, where they did a production of Disney songs.

Like many other clubs, choir also competed in contests. They went to contests in Austin, San Marcos, and San Antonio.

The Show Choir turned two this year. Girls who were interested in singing and dancing joined Show Choir. This group performed at the regular concerts and the Talent Show.

Georgettes kick up 5A successes

Georgettes used assorted props to enhance routines such as: "Fun, Fun, Fun" with innertubes and "If My Friends Could See Me Now" with folding chairs. They also did a jazz dance to "R.O.C.K.," a twenties dance to "The Roaring Twenties," and they kicked their way across the field to "Sweet Victory."

The team competed in a contest on Valentine's Day in Brownsville and won their first Sweepstakes Trophy. The girls used baseball bats for the prop routine to "Centerfield," and buckets and gingham skirts to the tune of "Playboy Stomp" for their novelty dance.

At the officer and solo contest in San Antonio, the team brought home the Super Sweepstakes Trophy. Marcie Merritt, Diane Benner, Zita Nemeth, and Dora Nemeth all received superior ratings for their solos.

Mrs. Roxanne Youngblood directed the team and officers included: Captain Stephanie Jeffries, First Lieutenant Amy Carr, Lieutenant Zita Nemeth, Lieutenant Stephanie Hollingsworth, Corporal Marcie Merritt, and Corporal Katy Schulze.

Struggling to meet college requirements

"What language are you taking?"

This became a popular question among students who took two years of a foreign language to meet college requirements. Some of those students involved themselves not only in the classroom, but in language clubs as well.

As the largest and most active, the Spanish Club sponsored the Day of the Dead for all Spanish classes at Halloween, and in January brought the annual Miss Ano Nuevo pageant to life. Senior Mike Hewlett, representing varsity football, was crowned at the end of the night. Scott Supak, representing Spanish Club, received first runner up; Sean Fullerton, representing Speech, second runner up; Shelley Davis, representing Future Teachers of America, third runner up; and Richie Tanksley, representing varsity basketball, fourth runner up. The other contestants named Richie Tanksley Miss Congeniality, and judges picked Shelley Davis as Most Talented. The Miss Photogenic award went to Chris Bennett, who represented band.

Latin Club sold candy-grams at Christmas. A candy-gram consisted of a candy cane with a greeting card attached, and members deposited the goodies in appropriate lockers.

French Club elected officers at the beginning of the year. Misty Clay held the office of president,Cheryl Walther became vice-president, and Kevin Denney held the office of secretary/treasurer. Their duty was to plan the annual spring banquet.

DEAD LINES

Extra efforts net results

Creativity was a necessity. Long hours were the norm. Dedication went without saying. Students who found themselves in a student publication,speech, or drama class usually got there by not being afraid of a challenge and stayed there because they committed themselves to seeing the job done. No one on Aerie staff spent just one class period a day to see the book finished. Many days computers buzzed as early as 8 a.m. or as late as 6 p.m., and numerous Saturday work days filled weekend slack. "I applied for staff because I thought it would be fun and something different. I wanted to be a part of putting the book together," said junior Jennifer Zeplin.

Speech students busied themselves by learning to project voices well, how to ad lib on a subject, and how to perform calmly in front of people at contests. Everyone in the club competed in tournaments. Speech belonged to the University Interscholastic League, Texas Forensic Association, and National Forensic League, and students competed in both public speaking and interpretive contests.

"I like the performing and competition of speech tournaments and the feeling of accomplishment when they hand you a trophy for something you worked really hard toward," said junior Laura Hayes.

Drama welcomed a new director this year and incorporated school wide activities such as a haunted house on Halloween and a dinner theater to their impressive list of accomplishments.

The Talon staff set a goal of one issue per six weeks for itself, and followed the lead of daily newspapers by producing a special issue on the spectacular butane fire near the school that evacuated the building in January.

"Everybody on the staff is very talented," said senior Kelly Sharpe. "I was very proud of the April Fool's issue."

Wings gave students a chance to lay out and edit pages and have poems,short stories and artwork published.

"I like Wings because it's a chance to write and get work published instead of writing for myself. I've learned a lot about how newpapers are put together," said senior Stacy Fuller.

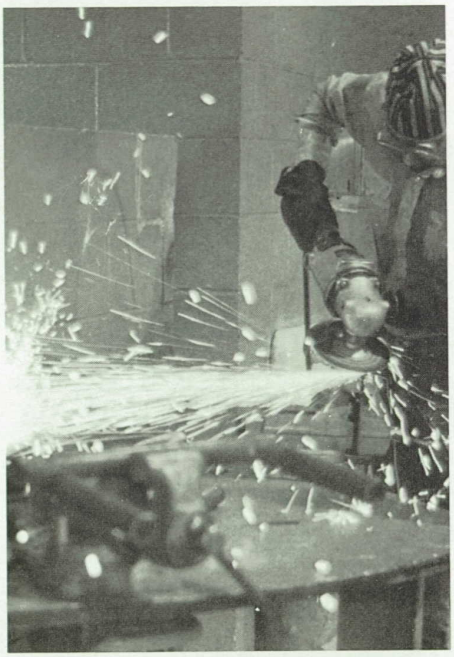
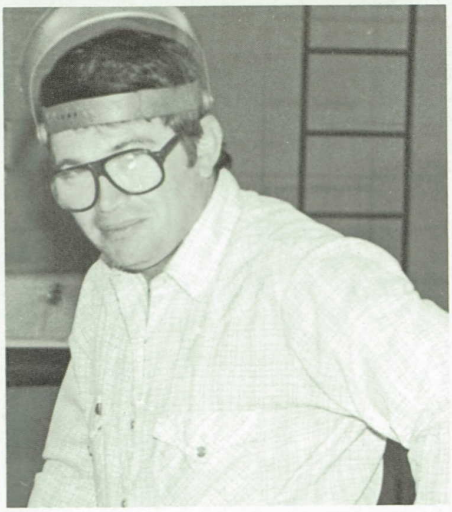
Clubs provide job experiences

Auto Mechanics learned many useful lessons under the direction of Mr. Jesse Lozano.

FOOD!: Senior Shannon Hudson enjoys the Vocational Co-op banquet.

BRIGHT LIGHT: Welding provided many career opportunities for students.





HUH??: Mr. Darrell Dunn takes a break during welding class.

"It was fun because we got to work on our own cars and on teachers' cars," said junior Louis Valdez.

General construction, VOCT, attended the State VOCT Leadership competition in Corpus Christi. The students submitted projects they built such as a bookcase and a gun cabinet.

Welding was an independent class, taught by Mr. Ron Linder. "Mr. Linder treats you with the same respect that you treat him," said senior Ralph Mathews.

Service groups share time

The School Board, Students Against Driving Drunk, and Fellowship of Christian Athletes all shared unique characteristics in that they served people and the community.

After board member Jim Hulme resigned his position on the board in October, his seat remained vacant until a spring election sent Marty Tyree to fill it. Veteran board member Charles Steger ran unopposed in that election.

Board members faced the challenge of dealing with a reduced budget and falling enrollment for the first time in many years.

Students Against Driving Drunk turned two years old this year. SADD members hung signs in the beginning of the school year reminding students not to drive while intoxicated.

"The posters made me think about drinking and driving and the consequences," said senior Carolyn Blanchard.

To further the SADD cause, the members placed a wrecked car in front of the school before Prom just as a little reminder of what could happen.

Fellowship of Christian Athletes had a turbulent year. President Trent Christianson, along with sponsors Kevin and Laura Johns were faced with making the group meetings fun and exciting while spreading God's word.

"FCA is a good way for people to come and be social, meet new friends, and at the same time learn about Christ," said senior Jeff Sandford.

"We are pushing for more membership, group involvement, and the understanding that you don't have to be an athlete to join us," said secretary Jennifer Zeplin.

DON'T DRIVE DRUNK: SADD member Roxy Almaraz shows juniors Michele Miller and Cathy Meadows what could happen if they drive drunk.

Making the Grade

Students work hard for honors

It took lots of hard work and long hours of studying to be recognized as a top scholar, and for those students selected for organizations like National Honor Society and Boys and Girls State, it took hard work to stay there. NHS, sponsored by Mrs. Jan Rodgers, sold carnations on Valentines Day, and sold doughnuts as another fundraiser. New members were inducted May 7. A pizza party at Mr. Gatti's ended the year for this club.

The local Rotary Club honored seniors who held at least a 93 grade point average by recognizing them at a luncheon and a football game and by presenting them with Rotary jackets.

Teachers selected Max Werkenthin and Beth Christian for Boy's State and Girl's State honors in the spring.

Student Council sponsored dances after every home football game, and directed class officer, cheerleader, Homecoming, Mr. and Miss GHS, and class favorite elections. As Homecoming drew newr, members sold mums to save people a trip to the florist.

A Definite Future

Students serve community

Serving others kept several clubs busy this year. Future Business Leaders of America, Future Teachers of America, Future Homemakers of America, and Future Farmers of America all helped throughtout the community.

FBLA sent members to competiton on the district level. They sponsored a garage sale and sold Valograms at Valentines Day. Members participated in the March of Dimes Walk-a-thon in April as their civic service project.

"The Walk-a-thon benefitted our members' health and also worked toward fighting birth defects," said president Janet Bohanan.

FHA helped people not to "Mess with Texas" by adopting a highway. They made Easter almost seem like Valentine's Day by sponsoring the Win a Bunny for your Honey contest.

FFA prepared themselves for the future when they raised their own livestock for competition. Members attended the Williamson County Stock Show, the Houston Stock Show and the San Antonio Stock Show. They took time to celebrate their accomplishments with a Christmas party and a banquet in May.

Students interested in education and the teaching profession joined FTA. A majority of these students worked directly in the elementary schools as teacher aides. Mrs. Carolyn Harper helped give students the opportunity to understand the amount of time and effort teachers contribute to their jobs. The members created bulletin boards, kept a journal of their classroom activities, and worked directly with children.

Top Notch

Where the move to 5-A this year seemed to hinder the athletic program, the academic awards won by students flourished.

UIL Literary, the choir, and the band all sent students to the state level.

Students also received awards such as: Rotary Scholars; merit awards; and journalism students became members of Quill and Scroll. Letter jackets were awarded to students who were outstanding in areas other than athletics.

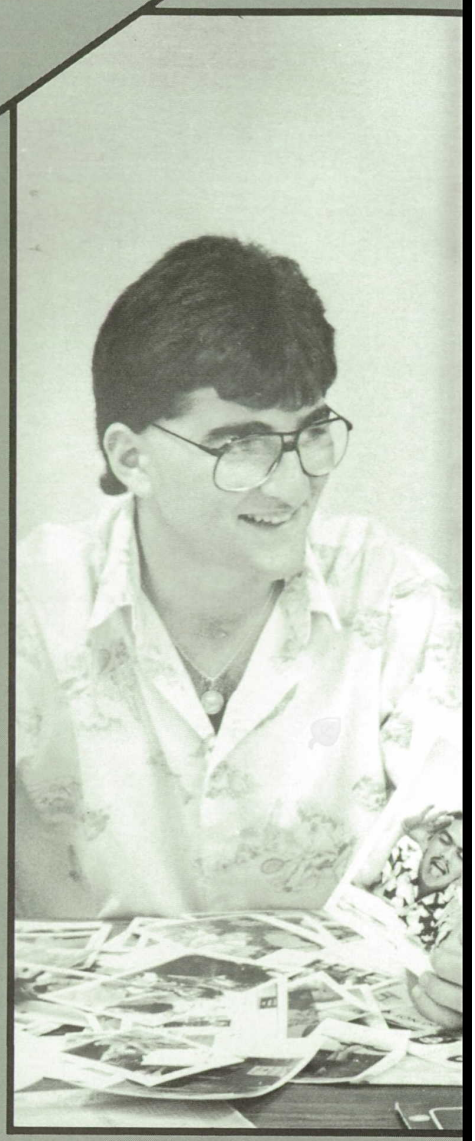
Classes

Keeping the school running smoothly presented tough problems for everyone. The administrators made school policies and tried to enforce them. Teachers gave the gift of knowledge.

In addition, the cafeteria workers, maintenance crew, counselors, secretaries, and library staff all played a great part in the running of the school, but the work of all these individuals would be for nothing without the knowledge-seeking scholars, dedicated athletes, and strung out others who made up the student body.

September found 1544 students on the rolls, but by May, only 1473 remained. The other 71 students either missed the bus one morning and got lost looking for it, moved, or didn't realize that the party on Saturday night wasn't supposed to last the entire spring semester. Approximately 377 seniors met requirements for a diploma.



GO AHEAD MAKE MY DAY: Secretary Nancy Stackhouse types up the weekly memos.

THAT'S A GOOD BOY: Seniors Mike Guest and Julie Peterhans play with a new friend during Child Developement.

Teacher's Pet

The bell rang for seventh period and junior Max Werkenthin headed for his Honors English III class. There he would face the woman who assigned him homework, graded his papers, prepared him for college English courses, and scrambled his eggs in the mornings. Max and his mother, Karen Werkenthin, had a very special student-teacher relationship. He had his mother for a class. He said that he didn't mind, but it was "somewhat different."

Junior Lynne Thomas, a student in the class with the Werkenthins, said, "It's fun ny to hear them argue about the differen opinions of their family vacations."

Max said he tried to stay pretty casua about the whole thing, but said, "I think I'm going to brainwash my mother ove the Christmas vacation so she won't give us so much work."

the faculty as well. Typing teacher Dee Hundley talked about her daughter Hyla, a junior. She said, "I don't mind her being in the same building as long as she doesn't embarrass me."

Some students who had parents on the faculty got questioned often about their mother or father. Junior George Velton said he didn't have any bad feelings about his mother, math teacher, Tally McAferty roaming the same halls. "But with a mother as wild and crazy as mine, who would?"

Junior Amy Varnell got a double close of parental supervision. She said her mother, Assistant Principal Jerre Varnell and her father, Coach Maurice Varnell always seemed to be "nipping at her heels."

Hey Look Us Over . . .

In it's first year of implementation, the Texas Teacher Appraisal System mandated by House Bill 72 triggered both positive and negative reactions.

"It has failed to reach its objective of improving education and the stress it has caused has had a negative effect upon teacher morale," said Spanish teacher Earl Martin.

Teachers went through the appraisal process by being evaluated four times a year by two different evaluators, and each at differnt periods of the day. According to TTAS, the first observation was scheduled while the second was to be a "surpise."

The appraisal "instrument" contained the evaluation of 71 aspects of the teaching process in about a 55 minute period, and covered five "domains" consisting of everything from instructional strategy to growth and responsibility

While many teachers disagreed with the policy, some felt that it was necessary, but that it needed adjustment.

English teacher Mrs. Theresa Cavendar said, "Evaluations are necessary and help the teacher to take a very close look at his/her methods of teaching. However, I believe that the instrument needs revision."

TTAS takes its toll

Students did not go untouched by the process.

"We had to dust and clean the room the day before one of my teachers was evaluated," said senior Kim Brent. "She got all dressed up and put on more make-up than usual."

"One teacher who hardly ever smiled in our class was everybody's friend on the day she got evaluated," said junior Mercy Bryant.

The controversy centered on the grading system and its connection to a career ladder. Grades given included 0,1 and 2. Zeros showed below standard and a two showed above standard. Teachers must tally a certain number of points in a three year period to make the career ladder or they faced losing their jobs.

"It is too long with too many criteria to grade. The thing that I think is unfair is that in some areas there is a slot for an 0 rating, but not a slot for an superior rating," complained band director Rodney Klett.

CLASSIC: Freshman Carole Navarrette enjoys a little spontaneity in her life and her hair shows it!

Hair this year varied from long to short and anywhere in between. Long hair, popular for both guys and girls,and short and punk hair ruled the fashion scene.

Senior David Schuler said, "I like my hair long because I like heavy metal and long hair symbolizes heavy metal."

Junior Grant Webster said that his hair wasn't really a style at all. "It's growing out from the mohawk I used to have," he said.

Senior Carolyn Blanchard said she liked her hair short because, "It's really easy to do".

Not all of the styles were either long or short. Kelly Sharpe's hairdo was long in front and short in back. This look seemed quite "in" according to junior Jeannie Copeland.

"Everyone is beginning to look the same . . . my mom would shoot me if I did that to my hair," said Jeannie.

Senior Kelly Sharpe said he wanted to be unique and the music he listened to had a little to do with it.

WINDOW GRAFITTI

It was a hot afternoon as Michelle and Mike rushed out to the parking lot at lunch stocked with a supply of red, blue, pink, white, and black shoe polish ready to attack the parked cars with the latest literary craze . . . "Shoe Polish Art."

In the distance they spied the perfect speciman! A 1976 rusted Chevrolet sat abandoned in the parking lot. They began applying humorous phrases on the heap. The car was almost covered, when from their right, they heard a man's voice screaming. Glancing in that direction, they saw Vice Principal Don Garrett coming at them. Wide-eyed, they panicked! What to do now? They dashed first to a car parked nearby and then crawled behind a trash dumpster. Michelle and Mike held their breath. Mr. Garrett bounded around the parking lot and summoned help over his walkie-talkie. Alone with the mad shoe polishers, Mr. Garrett creeped around trying to find them. When his back was turned, the terrified duo made a run for their car and headed for Sonic.

DECK THE HALLS

Coach Larry Moorhead's Art 1 classes decked the Commons with Christmas murals in December. The 15 foot long murals took one week of carefully planned drawing and painting but only lasted one week, before crazed vacation hungry students ripped them from the walls.

The four murals, one from each class, depicted everything from teddy bears to gremlins and were judged by the principals.

Coach Moorhead said he was pleased with the projects because,"everyone in the class helped plan, draw, and paint." He said that he "likes a class with a lot of participation instead of notes and lectures".

"It gave the school the spirit of Christmas," said junior Mercy Bryant.

Senior Cindy Castle thought that the Christmas murals were really nice but she said that "it was kind of sad that they got torn down after so many people spent so much time and effort."

PAINT-A-THON: Senior Kelly Webb, junior Monica Marquez, and senior Prentiss Hill add their special touch to the decoration of the halls during their art class.

What's the best thing that can be said about braces?

"Receiving an excused absence from school to go to the orthodontist appointments," said sophomore Chrissie Schmoker.

Braces, however, had many drawbacks according to those who wore them.

"They are a very big inconvenience affecting my social life," said Chrissie.

Junior Angela Hawes recalled one painful experience regarding the hardware that was firmly fixed to her teeth. Angela said, "I got in a fight one time and my lip got caught in them."

For many freshmen, braces were an essential part of their everyday fashion statements. Freshman Michelle Caskey said, "I don't really mind them, but I am counting the days until they're off."

"Braces? What braces? Well, I try to put them out of my mind," said freshman J.J. Rutledge.

All kinds of silver jewelry seemed to be the craze for fashion this year and the freshmen class acted appropriately to this. "It doesn't bother me that I have braces, they sort of go with this necklace I'm wearing," said freshman Michelle Hodge.

JAMMIN' JEANNIE

It is not easy to be heard through 10 pounds of fur, and it is not easy to stay cool with an eagle on your head, but junior Jeannie Copeland made up for her difficulties with spirit and determination as "Georgie" the Eagle mascot.

Jeannie, as a member of the varsity cheerleading squad, attended all the games and pep rallies and helped raise spirit with her antics.

"She was so full of spirit," said junior Katy Schulze, "that I couldn't help but join in when she was on the floor."

"She liked to boogie," said sophomore Dawn Parizek. "And she stayed happy no matter what the score was."

Don't Leave Me!

The 385 freshmen attending G.H.S. for the first time this year found a larger campus to greet them. The new freshman wing or "fish tank" as some called it, with 29 classrooms opened on the first day of school and combined with the other 82 classrooms, presented a sometimes overwhelming obstacle for the "fish" to overcome.

Let's Get Physical

In the wide world of sports, P.E. stands alone. The student handbook required students to have 1 1/2 years of some sort of athletics, physical education, or band. Most students not able to play an instrument or involved on the courts or fields chose P.E.

Volleyball, basketball, soccer, and football filled many P.E. hours. Other activities such as pillow polo, kickball, and badmitton ranked as favorites among students.

"I enjoy P.E. because I've got an hour's break away from homework," said sophomore Kim Andrews.

"P.E. can be fun sometimes because we don't have serious workouts like volleyball or those other sports," said freshman Heather DeLeon. As for freshman Stacey Sowers, she's in P.E. "only for the credit".

"I took P.E. this year and I hated it!" said junior Wendy Price. "The only thing that I really remember is playing volleyball with a beach ball."

"I haven't been in P.E. since the sixth grade, but I do miss playing dodgeball," said senior Gary Kanadjian.

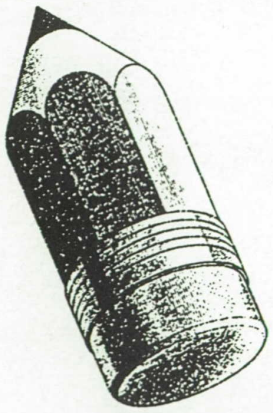
Drafting the Future...



If N.P.C. ever goes looking for new designs for homes they can start in Room 6. Two classes of students began working in September on new home designs in Architectual Drafting.

Every student took drafting for a different reason.

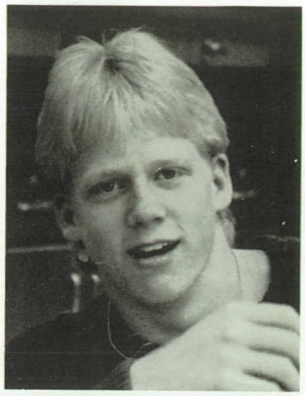
Junior Chris Graves took the class hoping it would be "easy." He said he was not disappointed.

"The skills taught can be applied to many different careers and hobbies," said senior David Sayler.

"Drafting is fun and you get to draw things, and sometimes we are even able to talk during class," David said.

Senior Jason Rackley said the class was, "Something I could use in life later in time."

"It's enjoyable and it is something I'll use and I'm very interested in," said senior Sharon Vasquez.



A.

Junior Victor Donahey "I was the punt returner at the Westlake game, and I missed the ball and had to go chase it. Everyone was watching me."

Q.

What was your most embarrassing moment?

A.

Sophomore Laura Joyner "A friend was teaching me to drive his truck and I was tryng to get it out of first and the tires screeched and I stalled it at the stoplight in town. Everyone was staring."

A.

Senior Julie Benziger "When I was in first grade, one day I went to school and sat down at my desk, and the boy next to me, Terrence Hall, started laughing at me because my pajamas, a pair of yellow bloomers with ducks on them, were sticking out from under my skirt. I had forgotten to take them off."

CAUTION:

Student Driver

Long, tedious hours of sitting in class, and hours and hours behind the wheel driving in circles had one payoff — the drivers' license.

Every student waits for the time when he gets his drivers' license. The freedom to go where and when one wanted symbolized a major step up on the ladder of maturity. However, this privilege didn't apply to just anybody over the age of 15. A new state law required students, if they took the course, to spend at least 32 hours in the classroom and 12 hours driving experience with an instructor.

The selection of names for each class was done on a first come, first serve basis, with most of the driving part taking place during summer.

"I liked the driving part better, we actually got to do something besides sitting in class. Plus it also helped me a lot by giving me some experience behind the wheel before I went out on my own," said sophomore Denise Klablonski.

The classroom portion of the class took place either an hour before, or an hour after school, depending on the class.

THAT'S NO EXCUSE

Hindelang Hears Them All

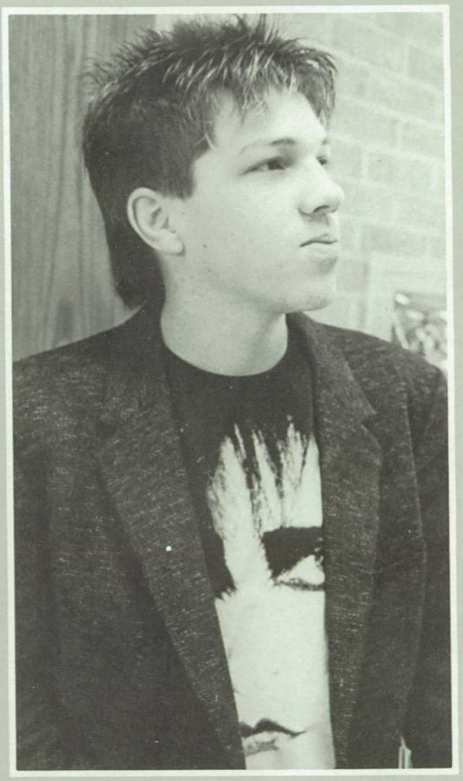
What is the most unusual excuse you have ever heard? That would be a very difficult question to answer for Attendance Officer Mrs. Judy Hindelang because she has heard them all.

"We average 100 excuses per day," Mrs. Hindelang said. "The greatest majority of excuses are written by parents. Only 10-15 percent are actual doctor notes. Students average about 25-40 tardies a day," Mrs Hindelang said."Tardies are really a big hassle. The best excuse I ever heard for being late one morning was when seniors Scott Pope and Melodee Norment were late because they stopped to have breakfast.

Not only are excuses funny, some are made up. Forgery of excuses if caught, was punishable by a lick from the principal.

"When we feel like someone has forged an excuse, we turn it over to one of the principals," Mrs. Hindelang said.

Students who received at least three tardies had to attend D-hall. Once a student received five tardies he received licks from a principal,and after seven tardies the student went to AEP.



DON'T BE LATE: Junior Mike Costello glances to see how much time he has to get to class before the tardy bell rings.

GOT YOUR EARS ON: Sophomore Cindy Moehring listens to tapes in a foreign language lab. Over 500 students took either Latin, Spanish, French or German.

Somewhere in the dark recesses of room 122 there lies a long forgotten, decaying frog heart.

"Somebody in my group just flipped it and it was gone," said senior Kevin Branstetter. Kevin took Biology I two years ago and said that to his knowledge, the heart was never found.

In addition to the sometimes gory dissections, another popular biology assignment included the infamous insect collection which counted half of a semester test grade. In Mrs. Sue Davidson's class students had to catch at least thirty-five insects in eight orders to get a "C".

Students learned all of the animal kingdoms and their orders, scientific names, classes, genus, and species.

Another lab looked at different cells under the microscope. "The teachers always thought it was really great but the majority of the students thought it was boring," said junior Lynne Thomas. Other activities ranged from testing acids and bases to prechemistry; from studying cells under the microscope to dissecting animals; from insect collections to flower collections, and atoms to protons, neutrons, and electrons.

HITTING THE LABS: Sophomores Christie Butler, Laura Joyner, Susan Berich, Michelle Rockett,

The first year of the high school science curriculum included physical science. "This is more fun than earth science in the eighth grade. We get to use real fire," said freshman Grady Sikes.

Sheri Franklin, now a sophomore, said,"I remember the time in physical science when Mrs. Shell caught her hair on fire showing us how to light a Bunsen burner."

"In a different aspect of biology, labs get more complicated and more intricate. Students seem to enjoy my labs," said biology teacher Joe Nix with a hint of pride.

Biology, the study of living organisms, offers a more useful and realistic view to the science world. Senior Amy Carr remembered the time when two usually well behaved students poured alcohol on a lab table and set fire to it.

"In Mr. Tippitt's class someone bet me $5 to touch my tongue to a fetal pig stomach . . . I did, it was gross," said senior Cody Anderson.

"Having the classroom and darkroom combined was such an improvement from past years when some of my photographers were in the darkroom down the hall and some were in the classroom," said Photojournalism instructor Donna Przygoda.

Photojournalism students did special effects, photo essays, design and layout and advertising projects this year. Most entered at least one contest.

What a Novel Idea!

It was a cold, damp evening, and the fog draped the landscape in a mystical veil. Senior English student Lori Raper curled up on the couch in front of a blazing fire, trying desperately to concentrate on the epic, Beowulf . Beside her on the floor sat juniors Bianca Rodriguez and Anne Hebert, eyes glued to the novel, The Scarlet Letter .

The three girls had sacrificed their evening out for the sake of English literature. Why such dedication to a mere novel?

Senior Carolyn Blanchard said,"The novels are read because they give background to a certain period in history, and they expose students to a different style of writing."

Junior Angela Hawes agreed that the novels gave students a chance to see unique literary styles, and she added that, through the novels, students "can compare one author's style to another."

The reasons why they were reading the novels were not on the minds of the three girls as they became entangled in the literary web of heroes vs. villians and good vs. evil. Suddenly, a noise came from upstairs! Jumping up from their chairs, the girls exchanged frightened glances, and then cautiously turned their heads toward the origin of the noise. They gasped in horror as a dark shadowy figure descended from the nebulous night. It was Senior English teacher Mrs. Eula Sharp!

Mrs. Sharp, like many other teachers, assigned novels to her senior English classes.

"The reasons for reading the novels," said Mrs. Sharp, "are so that the students can learn about the social, economic, and religious customs of the people during an important point in history."

Many teachers tried to make the novels a little more interesting to the students by assigning extra projects which coincided with the novel. Some baked cakes, some wrote essays, some watched films ,and one class acted out part of a novel in order to help bring it to life.

As Mrs. Sharp reached the bottom of the stairs, she smiled at the girls in delight. The girls noticed that, in her hand Mrs. Sharp carried her grade book. Taking out her red pen, Mrs. Sharp gazed mysteriously at the students. The three girls then realized that because of their dedication to English literature, they would be making an "A" for the six weeks.

TEACHER, I KNOW: Contemplating the plot of Beowulf, senior English student Archella Pavlisko asks a question concerning the history of the epic.

Comic Relief

Mrs. Eula Sharp's senior Honors English classes brought the The Canterbury Tales to life by acting out two of the stories told by the travelers in the poem.

"It really broke up the monotony of reading another novel," said senior English student CiCi Meyer.

Most students found that reading novel after novel could get monotonous, but few got the opportunity to do anything else. However, for Mrs. Sharp's students, the chance to do something different brought excitement and fun to the learning experience.

Scott Fisher, who portrayed the Squire in third period's rendition, said that he "thoroughly enjoyed putting on the play." He also said that he "had fun dressing up and acting crazy."

Gary Collins, another senior English student, said that the play "was a unique way of learning about a novel."

"The Wife of Bath's Tale" was brought to life by the fifth period class. Students had a good time becoming kings, queens, knights, and frolicing maidens for an hour.

Senior English student Ralph Matthews said, "I had fun dressing up, and doing this play allowed me to learn and to have fun."

"School" and "fun" are rarely uttered in the same sentence, but Mrs. Sharp's English students realized that getting an education could be enjoyable.

"The students in Mrs. Sharp's Honors English classes not only had fun in their dramatic endeavors, but also came away from the experience with a better understanding of The Canterbury Tales , and an appreciation of literature," said Amy Carr, senior English student.

Remember To Forget

It's not often that a Pulitzer Prize nominated poet comes to our school to share works with students, but in March, Maria Landowska, nominated for "I Have No Name," spoke to Mrs. Rhonda Teel's speech classes.

A survivor of Dachau and Auschwitz, Mrs. Landowska now lives in Dallas and has been interviewed on CBS 60 Minutes and asked to testify at the Mengele hearings in Wasling,Israel.

"I feel Mrs. Landowska's visit to the school was a very educational experience for our students that they normally would not have had," said Mrs. Teel, speech teacher.

"I was deeply moved," said sophomore David Gahagan. "It gave me a better appreciation of poetry."

CLASS ACT: Freshman Dea Briggs and senior Stacy Fuller read from The Christmas Carol during drama class in the Little Theatre.

UPSTAGED

Most people want to live forever. Some students felt they could accomplish immortality through movies and television, and that drama class was the best place to get started.

"I feel like I'm learning a lot," said freshman Christie Culp, a member of the drama club. "I also feel that the assignments are useful since I'm going to pursue drama in college."

"I like it because it gives us freedom to express ourselves," said Angela Bowman.

Senior Stephen Clarke and sophomore Beth Tedesco portrayed each other in a drama assignment.

"I'd be all set if I had to play the lead role in Little Women ." said Stephen.

"It was hard," complained Beth. "But I found out that guys try to take all the good credit and blame girls for everything that goes wrong."

BASIC TRAINING

Every afternoon after school in the fall, athletes made their way to the football practice field. Some athletes dressed in their uniforms and headed to the trainers office to get ankles, knees, and fingers taped before practice. But something was different about this scene this year. Some of the trainers were girls.

This year marked the first time in Georgetown's football history that the team had girls working as trainers. The guys didn't seem to mind.

"We don't care if they're girls, just as long as they keep up the work," said senior Tim Belke.

Juniors Amy Pickard, Tabatha Goble. and Cathy Byrne had problems at first but they eventually worked them out.

"At first people didn't like the idea, but they got used to it," said Amy.

"Yeah, people didn't even like me because I was on the team, but now they don't mention it," added Cathy.

Head Trainer Kevin "Doc" Johns found his help over the intercom. "I heard the announcement and thought it sounded like fun," said Tabatha.

What kind of work did these people do? Trainers learned to tape injuries, evaluate accidents, learn the basic first aid and problem management. During practices three to four people were needed, and during a game, seven or eight.

CARS . . . MORE THAN JUST TRANSPORTATION

Both student parking lots overflowed with a variety of automobiles this year. Most students relied on the constant dependability of their cars, but it was the way the vehicle LOOKED that attracted them to the cars in the first place.

"Cars are many teenagers' source of independence," said senior Murray Blackman.

But student opinions about the vehicles they drove were as varied as the students themselves.

"I want a pick-up truck. I think they are more fun to drive and more noticeable than cars," said sophomore Michelle Rockett.

"I have a huge monster of a car. It is like a museum of useless junk. I never know what I will find in my car," senior Holly Good about her LTD.

"It's the ultimate party machine. I don't ever have to worry about wrecking it because it wouldn't change the appearance much," senior David Barker said about his green and white scout.

Cultural Exposure

Beethoven anyone? How about a little Picasso?

Whether one fancied music, art, or literature, contemporary or classic; Mr. Louis Devanney exposed his Humanities classes to it all

"It's different from any other class I've ever had," said senior Kevin Denney. "We do all kinds of things from viewing art to getting into arguments about politics."

Humanities was a new class offered this year by Mr. Devanney. Its main goal was "to develop sensitivities to the arts," Mr. Devanney said.

The class met for one semester and had about 15 students enrolled.

"I want the class to be small so I can develop more individual help," said Mr. Devanney.

NOT THE "A" TEAM: Mr.Louis Devanney shows Humanities students a classic film during class. Students saw many movies and films which provided them with new cultural experiences.

TO THE POINT: Humanities teacher, Mr. Louis Devanney stresses the importance of culture in our society.

Q. What is your favorite subject and why?

A. Alvina Hernandez-Sophomore: "My favorite subject is art because I like to draw."

A. Lisa Hernandez-Junior: "My favorite subject is math because it's challenging."

A. Ronny Mobbs-Sophomore: "My favorite subject is food service cause it comes easy to me and I love to eat a lot."

THE STARTER AT HIS POST: Custodian Cal Miller controls the raceway from the middle of Austin Avenue after school.

Eagle 500

When the afternoon bell rang at 3:45, high school students raced to their waiting cars. The confusion that ensued as the cars raced and jockeyed into position to leave the campus resembled the annual Indianapolis 500.

High school employees, such as Jesse Velasquez and Cal Miller, risked life and limb to try to organize the heavy traffic. If these daring traffic officers had not taken charge and controlled the frantic traffic on busy Austin Avenue, many of these students might not have gotten home before dark.

"As a concerned citizen I certainly have appreciated the help these individuals have provided the past year. I'm sure my feelings are echoed by other parents, faculty, and students," said George Ramsay, father of junior Trey Ramsay.

"The future may see additional traffic control devices such as traffic lights," said city council member Bill Conner. "But this would have to be worked out between the city and the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation."

Check It Out

IT'S MAGIC: Junior Leslie Collings inspects the book she just checked out trying to unravel the new library security system.

"I'm warning you, don't do this again!"

Students heard these words from Mrs. LaDain Burson, library aide, and Librarians Mrs. Donna Getz and Mrs. Barbara Burnett the first time they forgot to check out a book or purposely carried one out, and this year the librarians were backed up in their efforts by a new $8,000 security system.

"We're losing an average of 300 books a year which comes to about $3,200," said Mrs. Burson.

For this reason, the security system, which warned librarians each time a student left the library without first checking out the book with a loud beeping noise, was expected to pay for itself in three or four years.

Using a magnetic strip called tattle tape, the librarians "bugged" every book and magazine in the library. When students checked out a book, a library staff member desynthesized the book by running it across a machine called a synthesizer. The security system then allowed the student to pass through the exit without beeping.

When a book was returned, the librarians re-synthesized it and put it back on the shelf.

Most students did not seem to mind the new system.

"It doesn't bother me much," said junior Mercy Bryant. "I just think it's a shame we had to spend so much money on a machine because so many books were stolen."

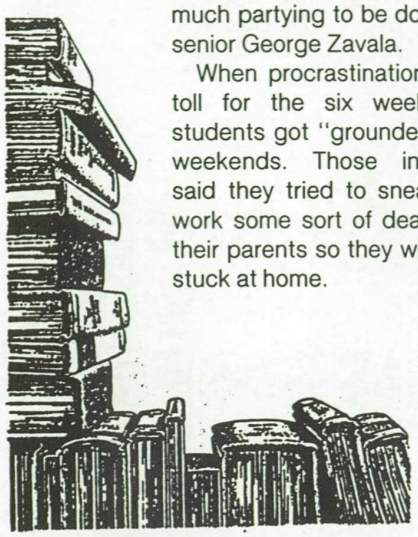
Who? Me Study?

What does it take to make the GRADE? Studying. But most people polled said they put it off to the last minute or didn't do it at all.

Procrastination topped the list as the major contributor to poor study habits. Junior Lynne Thomas said, "Procrastination is my worst asset."

"Who has time for studying when there's so much partying to be done?" said senior George Zavala.



When procrastination took it's toll for the six weeks, many students got "grounded" for the weekends. Those interviewed said they tried to sneak out, or work some sort of deal out with their parents so they wouldn't be stuck at home.

"Homework? What's that?"

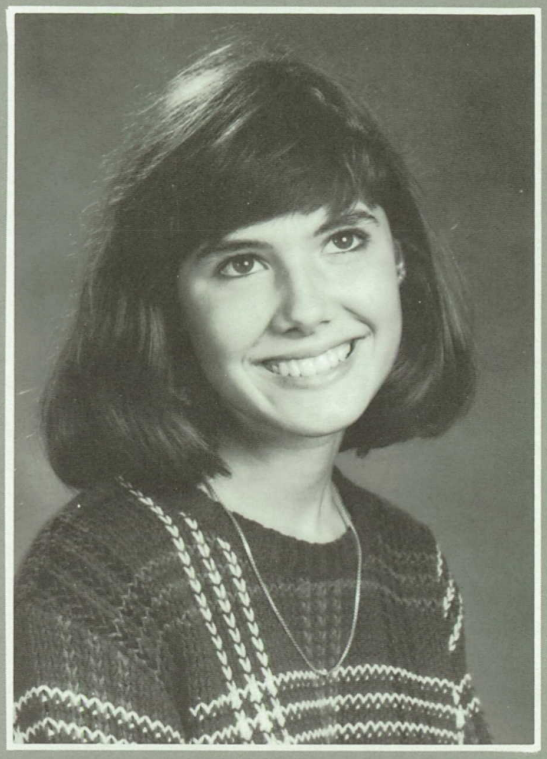
Lara Lefforge 1969-1986



What can be said about a beautiful, vivacious 17 year old girl who dies? Lara Lefforge, who spent three years at GHS, went to Germany as an exchange student, and was to return second semester to complete her senior year. In September, she was involved in a traffic accident and after days of fighting for her life, died in a German hospital. Lara touched many lives through activities such as Speech Club, National Honor Society, and Future Teachers of America but those closest to her remember her best. One of her close friends, senior Nicole Tableriou remembered Lara in her yearbook journal for October 3:

This isn't really a journal entry. I just need to write. Lara died yesterday. It's real hard for me to accept. No one I've ever been friends with has died. She's only 17. That means it could happen to anyone of us. I never thought she wouldn't make it. Now come the "I wish's. I wish I'd seen her before she went to Germany. I wish I hadn't ever said anything bad about her. And the "remember when's. Remember eating nachos for lunch at her house. Remember going out to lunch in her "boat". Remember Tracy telling her she should be on the cover of Vogue. Remember how cute she and Peter were. Remember, remember. And why?

HEAVY METAL: Senior Trent Christianson lifts weights five days a week after school.

Weight Up

Dressing in a smelly pair of sweats and straining muscles to pick up heavy pieces of iron may not seem like everyone's idea of a good time but for some seniors like John Knorre and Chris Crow it played a part in their daily routines.

Many students involved in athletics lifted weights during that class period. Other students followed their own individual body building routines.

"We lift three days in a row and then we skip a day. One day we do legs, then back, and then we do our upper torso," said senior John Knorre. "We get up early, before school, and do it."

Guys were not the only students interested in body building. Girls' sports such as volleyball and basketball worked out also. Some girls lifted on their own simply to stay in shape.

"I used to lift weights a lot but I haven't lately. Usually I lift just to keep in shape," said senior Holly Brown. "I'm not really 'body building'. I'm just firming up so I can stay in shape."

LISTEN AND LEARN: Senior Michelle Wright interviews Senor Earl Martin on his views about Dia de los Muertos for the Talon.

"If we're going to understand, or get anywhere near world peace, we have to understand other people and their culture," said Senor Earl Martin.

In an effort to keep students aware of Spanish tradition and cultural differences Senora Jody Almarez, Senora Keta Cabrera, Senor Earl Martin, and Senora Susan Smith planned a day of information about Dia de los Muertos.

Dia de los Muertos, or the Day of the Dead, took place on October 31, Halloween. Spanish III classes organized the event. Other Spanish classes brought the food and drinks for the celebration. Eating, drinking, and presentations lasted all day. Food varied from cookies and punch, to sandwiches, chips and dips. Presentations, given three times an hour, pertained to the history and lore surrounding Dia de los Muertos. "It is an important event, because it is one of the few chances students at GHS have to experience Spanish culture," said junior JoLisa Hoover.

LET'S EAT: Sophomore Tami Duke and seniors Tina Erlandson and Bonnie Perriello prepare to feast on all the goodies brought for the Day of the Dead, while foods, candles, and reminders of the deceased loved one adorn the altar.

DEADLY OBSERVERS: Juniors Russel Travis and Amy Varnell every detail of the altar set up in portable four on October 31.

SEE JANA. SEE JANA RUN. JANA IS LATE AGAIN.

Senior Jana Cook recorded several tardies because her work as an elementary aide took her to Eastside Primary School first period, three days a week and sometimes she didn't make it to the high school in time for second period.

"Elementary Aide gives me a great learning experience, since I plan to be a teacher in the future," said senior Marla Stephenson.

Senior Shannon Sturm decided that she wanted to be an elementary aide because,"My mom is a teacher and I like working with kids."

Elementary Aide was a half year or a whole year course offered to junior or senior students who enjoyed working with children. Student aides must have maintained an 80 or above average and have two teacher recommendations. The students who wanted to be an elementary aide had to attain approval from sponsor Mrs. Carolyn Harper, and fill out a form which stated their grade point average and their reasons for wanting to be a student aide.

Shannon said," You get to pick what grade and where you want to teach." Shannon assisted Mrs. Beth Cook at Westside Primary School.

The Dating Game

Great — Rocky — Challenging. Students used these words among others to describe their relationships with members of the opposite gender. Some of the duos lasted only a couple of weeks while some became full-fledged commitments.

"We've been together thirty-seven months," senior Kristy Schneider said of her relationship with boyfriend Jeff Geer.

Although their time together was greatly diversified, most of the couples interviewed enjoyed the same entertainment. Movies and going out to eat topped the list and parties and shopping remained favored activities.

"We either go on a date (movies/dinner) or sometimes when we get domestic we'll rent movies and stay at home," said senior Mike Hewlett.

Those surveyed also preferred commitment to "dating around".

"I like the security and closeness a commitment brings, yet sometimes it can be a big hassle." said senior Kim Brent about her on-and-off relationship with Scott Hill.

TIME AFTER TIME: Senior Kim Rose demonstrates one of her fashion statements for this year.

TIME OUT

Watches . . . They've changed from being just an instrument used to tell time, to an unmistakable fashion statement. This year it became more and more common to see students wearing fashionable watches such as a Swatch, Guess, and Coca-Cola brands. These watches served as time pieces as well as an added accessory to any outfit.

Junior Jennifer Zeplin said, "watçhes pretty much make an outfit."

Senior Holly Good wore a watch because "it keeps my life in some kind of order." She often wore two watches because "it looks frantic."

Senior Kelly Bryant wore a watch "only because my parents gave it to me."

Senior Kim Rose wore a watch "to tell time, of course."

Students wore many kinds of watches. They ranged from generic timex's to flashy Rolex's, Seikos, Bulovas, and even an occasional Mickey Mouse.

Kim said,"There seems to be as many watch styles as there are personalities."

Junior Tabatha Goble felt that "watches state people's personalities."

Accompanying the broad range of watch styles, was a broad range of price tags. A generic digital could be bought for about $4 to $5 while a Rolex could go for as much as $3000.

Q. How do you feel about graduating in June?

A: Senior Linda Montalvo: "I don't think it's fair because it's on a Monday night and out of town relatives can't come."

A: Senior Cynthia Conomos: "I graduate in May. Let's not prolong it any longer than we have to. I have a life to get on with."

A: Senior Cindy VanNamen: "It's unfair that all the other classes got a week off and got to graduate in May."

A: Senior Tina Erlandson: "I don't want to graduate in June. I wish we could graduate in May. But that's life!"

A: Senior Dawn Knox: "I feel June is coming too fast. I wish I could be a senior forever."

Grads

SAY CHEESE: Senior class president Amy Carr snaps a shot of her friends before graduation begins.

A HANDSHAKE INSTEAD OF A KISS: Graduates Scott Supak and Jacinto Castillo give each other a congratulatory handshake before they march on the field.

GONE Crackers

As ominous clouds threatened to dampen the celebration, 333 graduating seniors took to Eagle Field June 1, to receive diplomas, say good-bye to friends and teachers, and to reflect on past achievements and future endeavors.

Salutatorian Cindy Rowland and valedictorian Gary Collins credited parents and teachers for their successes, and in a poignant eulogy, Nicole Tableriou remembered a classmate who would never graduate.

As each graduate's name was called, school board vice-president Charles Steger handed diplomas to the honorees,and received a cracker laden handshake in return, in their rendition of the traditional pass the penny or marble game.

Graduates tearfully sang the class song, "How Do We Say Good-bye?" and the school song, tossed mortar boards into the air, set off smoke bombs and yelled and hugged as the evening dwindled to a close.

FLY AWAY LITTLE BOARD: Seniors toss their mortar boards into the air as another year comes to an end.

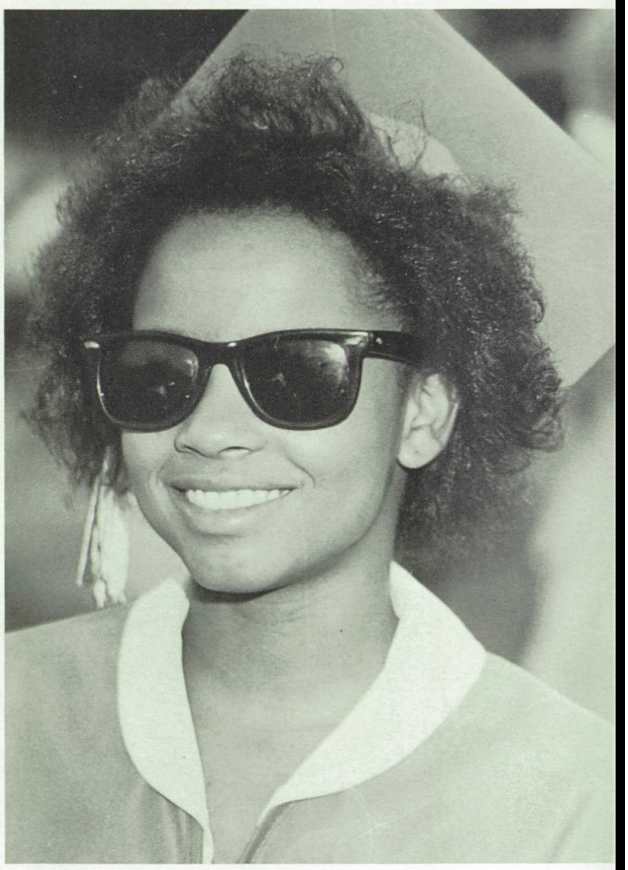
HUGS ALL ROUND: Graduate Beth Cuff gets a hug from teacher Mrs. Marietta Mugford as she prepares to join her classmates.



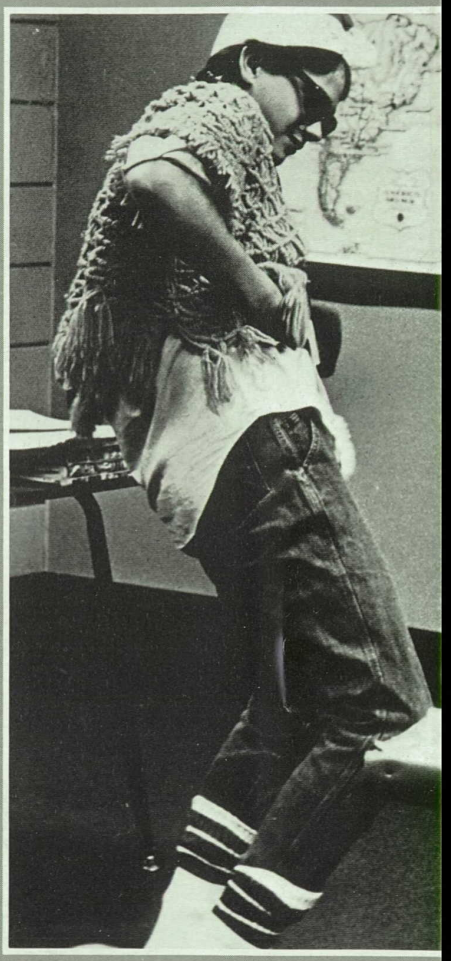
THE FUTURE'S SO BRIGHT YOU GOTTA WEAR SHADES: Senior Tracey Aikerson talks to friends before graduation.

PROGRAMMED: Annette Aguilar, Roxanne Almaraz, and Chris Cantu Vasquez check to make sure they are among the graduates.

Ads Index

Without the help of our loyal advertisers, the Aerie would be a much different book. Their support allows us to bring color and graphics to our readers and to produce a book to be proud of.

Sometimes, however, our readers, for one reason or another, do not give this section the attention it should get. Therefore, this year the staff has given every effort to make the ad section more readable by including new designs, and the index with the ad section.



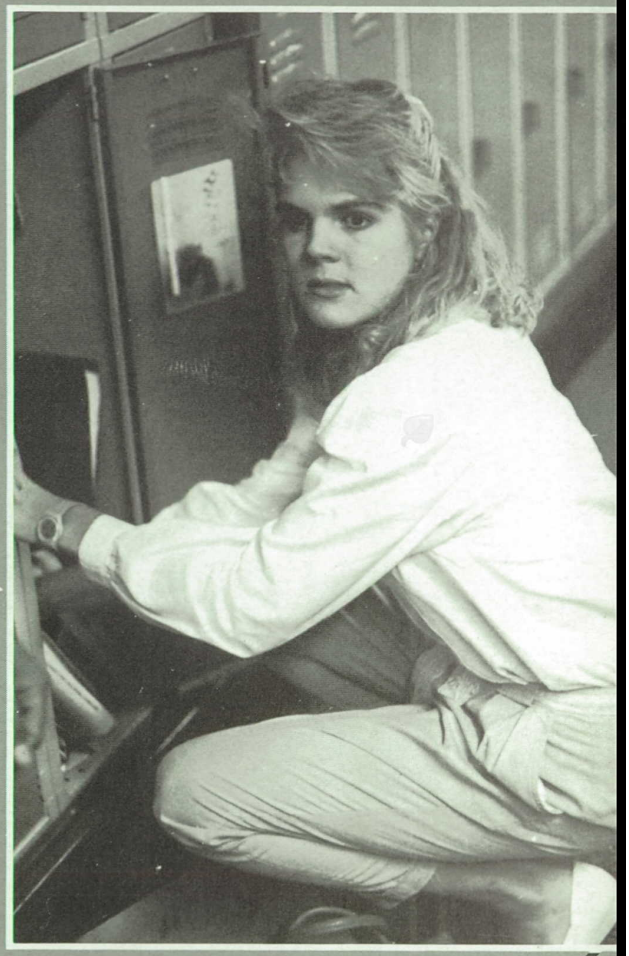
CAN YOU TYPE? Senior Julie Benziger works on the computer in Photojournalism to finish her long overdue project. Photojournalism students used computers to record articles and captions.

SEXY FEET: Junior Marcy Potter shows off her new shoes while sitting in the park.

THIS IS THE FAJA: Sophomore Anthony Auizenis shows off his pretty new wardrobe in Spanish class. Mrs. Keta Cabrera's students learned the names of articles of clothing by wearing them.

PLAYING THE GAME: Seniors Karl Siebert and Kevin Denney play a game at Zebra's after school.

SITTING PRETTY: Junior Sophia Frost puts her books away before she goes to lunch.



TOM CRUISER: Sophomore James Clarke mimics his favorite actor on the bus going home in the afternoon.

Dear Shelly and Carolyn,
Thank you for giving us wonderful memories. We will always cherish the years together. Good luck at U.T. and U.N.M.
We Love You,
Your Families

Shelly Schmoker and Carolyn Blanchard

Q.

If you could live in any other era, when would it be?

Mrs. Tally McAferty

MRS. TALLY McAFERTY, TEACHER:

"As an ex-history teacher, it's hard to decide. But wherever I go, I get to take air conditioning with me."

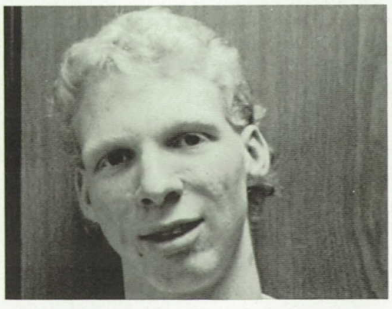
Kammie Davis

SENIOR

KAMMIE DAVIS,SOPHOMORE:

"I'd like to live sometime around the Civil War because I like the way they dressed and there seemed to be romance around."

Eric Nelson



ERIC NELSON, SENIOR:

"I'd live in the 50's because I like their cars, music, girls, and just about everything else."

Mike Rickard

MIKE RICKARD,SENIOR:

"I'd live sometime in the future because maybe by then they'll have anti-gravity beds."

What Do You Want To Do With Your Life?

While most students put off making career decisions, at least one senior, Robert Hernandez, knew exactly what he wanted to do. He wrote about an early job experience which helped make up his mind.

STICKS: Senior Robert Hernandez plans to continue his favorite hobby into a professional career.

"Something I never thought I would be doing is teaching, especially at an early age. It was fun though; something new and challenging. I had a job which I could really say I enjoyed for it utilized my favorite skill . . . my ability to play a drumset.

"I started teaching in the summer of '85 at The Music Store on the Square. I had my own private classroom where I taught one student at a time. It was a great experience in return because it taught me too.

"Although my teaching was not the same as academic teaching, some of my grudges toward teachers and the teaching profession wore off.

"Teaching drum and perc music is something I would like to do because it is something I could really 'stick' to."

No tour would be complete without thanking the producers and roadies who helped make it possible. The 1987 Aerie Tour '87 yearbook was printed by Taylor Publishing Company of Dallas, Texas, using the Vision Series computer programs on IBM personal computers. The 1000 copies contained 224 pages printed on number 80 enamel paper, and used Optima, Souvenir, Impact, and Brush typestyles for most headlines. Ten point Helvetica was used as body copy type.

Cover graphics were designed by the staff and drawn by Justin Sharpe, who also drew the endsheet designs.

Special thanks to Mrs. Pat Brittain our Taylor representative, and the Williamson County SUN for their help and advice, and to the Photojournalism students who contributed copy and photographs. Class pictures were taken by George Gideon and Associates of Delmar Studios of Temple, Texas.

Seniors Chris Knight and Jeff Hemple

The Final Act

Another year passed, much the same as the years previously but then again totally different in its own way. The year saw the passage of another graduating class of seniors and the arrival of a new crop of young, unsuspecting freshmen. We also witnessed many new fashions and fads, student protests, couples come and go, and the teen-age years once again played out in the halls of GHS. We experienced our move up to 5-A and the excitement of a new wing and immaculate gym facilities.

And so it goes, the never-ending cycle of the modern high-school come to its inevitable end once again leaving us with only memories and this book to mark its passing.

Ansalan, Its a great friend! Last year was great but I know this year will be even better! Have fun this year and the next two!
Love, Shanna Murray
Ansalan, Really glad I had this class with you. Good luck always!
Love ya, Kelly Maughan
Ansalan, I'm glad I got to know you a little. You're a great friend. Good luck always!
Love ya, Sabrina
Ansalan, I haven't seen you as much as I would have liked, but maybe this year I will. Love, Samantha Russell

Ansalan, You are so sweet and cool. I hope we stay friends. Have a great year!
:) Amy
Ansalan— Hey I'm glad we're friends. Stay sweet—
Heather Dean
I've known you for about 2 years now. I must say being in your presence is quite an honor. Good luck in the future! Wish you all the best!!!
Love, Always,
Kim

Ansalan, you are a super girl. Science class was great too & we don't have any more classes
Ansalan, thanx for being such a good friend. P.S. hope we can
Michelle Crawford "Big Mama's"

Ansalan,
Since I met you in Latin last year, I haven't been so intimidated by learning something as complex as Latin. You have always been there to help when I needed it. Thanx a lot. Good luck in everything.
Love,
Bobby J

Ansalan,
Well Latins a blast and you're a really good sport about my crude comments plea just ignore me. Eve though we're not that close, I guess we're good buds. Have fun the Remaining years 'cu'll really need to. Later
